SENATE PASSES RELIEF BILL

Spanish Cabinet Hands In Its Resignation

KING SEEKS FLOOD WATERS IN ARIZONA TAKE TOLL OF EIGHT LIVES

CONCENTRATION GOVERNMENT EXPECTED TO BE FORMED WITHIN FEW DAYS
LASTED ONLY A YEAR
Socialists and Republicans Announce Boycott of Coming Elections

MADRID, Feb. 14.—(UP)—King Alfonso XIII accepted the resignation of the cabinet of Premier Gen. Damaso Berenguer today. The resignation of the cabinet followed the decision of the Liberal party not to collaborate in the work of the Parliament which Berenguer had planned to elect in March. Count Romanones, Liberal leader, said that his party would keep its promise to participate in the elections, but that the Liberals would withdraw from Parliament unless a constitutional convention was called.

Socialists and Republicans announced their decision to boycott the elections. Count Romanones, it was understood, informed King Alfonso that it was impossible to disregard this attitude on the part of important political elements. It was expected that a concentration government would be formed to convene a constitutional convention. Opponents of the government's election plans held that the constitution lapsed after Parliament was dissolved in 1923 and the king failed to call elections within the stipulated limit of three months.

The Berenguer government lasted just over a year, having assumed power Jan. 30, 1930, two days after the resignation of Gen. Primo De Rivera. The De Rivera dictatorship began after a coup d'etat of Sept. 15, 1923. Martial law existed for over a year and a half and Primo De Rivera became premier on Dec. 5, 1925.

The present Spanish constitution, that of a constitutional monarchy, was drafted in 1876. It was believed today that the resignation of Berenguer and the consequent dropping of plans for a parliamentary election would mean

On March 31st of this year there will be placed in the national statutory hall at Washington the figures of Father Junipero Serra and Thomas Starr King. These are the two which have been agreed upon. The final report of the commission has just been presented to Governor Rolph and the statues are on their way to Washington to occupy their places in the Hall of Fame.

There are two places for each state, and the two for whom these places are selected are two clergymen, one a Catholic, the Franciscan Father, Junipero Serra, whose record is so familiar to all Californians, and the other, a Unitarian clergyman who lived in the city of San Francisco from 1860 to 1864.

It has occurred to us that it would be well to present the record of these two men in the editorial columns of The Register, one each day. In view of the limited space, we will put in the story of Father Junipero Serra today, as told by Father St. John O'Sullivan of the San Juan Capistrano mission over the radio a year ago. We will give the record of Mr. King on Monday.

At the age of 16 years he entered the Franciscan convent in Palma, Marjorca, to begin the long years of study for the priesthood. At that time he was so delicate in health and small in size that the Superior was at first unwilling to receive him, but on learning that he had the required age, accepted him. A year later he made his profession and took the name of Junipero, in memory of Brother Junipero, or Juniper, a special companion

YANK DIVISION COMMANDER IS CALLED TODAY

Maj.-General Clarence Edwards Passes Away After Operation

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—(UP)—Maj.-General Clarence R. Edwards, retired, who became a hero of two wars during 39 years of military service, died at 7:06 a. m. today.

The war-time commander of the 26th (Yankee) division, known to his doughboys, as "Daddy," was 71 years old.

Death followed closely a second operation performed yesterday to relieve an intestinal disorder against which the celebrated soldier had waged a gritty, months-long fight at Phillips' house of Massachusetts General hospital.

At the bedside when death came later were the general's only immediate relative, a sister, Mrs. Charles A. Otis, of Cleveland, O., and her husband.

Maj.-General Clarence Ransom Edwards was born at Cleveland, O., on January 1, 1860, son of William and Lucia E. (Ransom) Edwards. Among his ancestors was Jonathan Edwards, distinguished New England theologian.

Edwards early felt the calling to a soldier's life, and he matriculated at the United States military academy at West Point at the age of 19. He was graduated in 1883 with the rank of second lieutenant, and assigned to the 23d infantry at Fort Porter, Buffalo, N. Y.

He passed through the grades of first lieutenant, captain, lieutenant-colonel, and brigadier-general before being elevated to the rank of major-general during the World war.

Edwards' first participation in warfare occurred during the war with Spain, when he was made chief of staff of General Henry W. Lawton in the Philippines. Previously, he had mobilized the 23d

Al Smith And Will Rogers In Register

Two of the leading figures in the United States today have been added to the editorial staff of The Register and the first of their contributions will be found starting on page 1 of this edition.

Al Smith, candidate for president in 1928 will write a weekly letter for The Register, while Will Rogers will contribute daily.

While the editorial policy of The Register is not in accord with certain views of the two above named writers, nevertheless they are of such importance that it is believed that the readers of this paper will appreciate their thoughts

PURINTON WILL TURN DIRT AT P. O. CEREMONY

Postmaster Stephenson and Others to Take Part In Celebration

FRANK L. PURINTON, mayor of the city of Santa Ana, will turn the first shovel of dirt in the ground breaking ceremony scheduled to take place at the site of the new post office at Sixth and Bush streets at 9:00 o'clock Monday morning. He will give a short speech on the progress made in the city during the past few years.

As a representative of the government, Terry Stephenson, postmaster, will give a response to Purinton's speech.

R. J. Chute, the contractor of Los Angeles, who was awarded the contract for the erection of the new post office, will be here and will give a statement regarding the co-operation he intends to give local dealers and laborers. All of the contracting work will be given to local contractors and all of the labor will be recruited from this vicinity.

W. F. Sorenson, president of the Orange County Builders' Exchange, will give a brief talk concerning the Builders' Exchange viewpoint of the erection of the building.

J. C. Jerome, president of the chamber of commerce, will preside over the ceremony and give a talk concerning the progress made in the city during the last few years.

PRESIDENT MAY VETO SOLDIER LOAN MEASURE

Bill Undoubtedly Will Be Passed on Monday By Good Majority

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(UP)—A studied silence carrying the implication of a veto is being maintained at the White House toward the compromise bill to increase the loan limit on World war veterans adjusted service certificates to 50 per cent of their face value. House leaders, meanwhile, prepared to pass the measure Monday under suspension of rules. A majority also is reported to favor the bill in the senate, and early action there is anticipated.

While President Hoover had made no public statements concerning any of the various veterans' relief proposals, his associates in the administration—particularly Secretary of Treasury Mellon—have indicated he considers most of the plans dangerous.

The financial condition of the government involved in the proposals has been the subject of frequent conferences between Mr. Hoover, Mellon, Undersecretary of Treasury Mills and Veterans Affairs Administrator Hines.

The latest of these conferences was followed last night by a letter from Mellon to Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee which was construed as a further indication of a veto. In the letter, Mellon expressed disapproval of the compromise loan bill and urged its reconsideration "upon a basis which will not damage our whole financial position."

Mellon said the measure, the potential cost of which he estimated at $1,720,000,000, could not be financed without interfering seriously with the treasury financial program. He added that it would necessitate at an early date one or more long-term issues of government securities. Mellon estimated the cost of the proposal at from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

Every new development seems to put a duty upon the government before the people themselves can derive the full benefit from it. The advent of the airplane makes necessary the municipal landing port within reasonable distance of the destination of the plane. Twenty-five years ago, the beginning of the popular use of the automobile brought government to the point of recognizing the necessity for good roads. Prior to that time, we had macadam and stone roads. They had supplanted the gravel roads and the gravel roads in turn had supplanted the dirt roads. Macadam roads were built by the simple process of spreading broken stone rolled and ground into place. There is no doubt that they probably met the needs of horse drawn vehicles, but they broke down completely upon the arrival of the automobile.

It is fair to say that twenty-five years ago, when the states were planning their first extended highway systems, nobody could foresee the growth in the number of automobiles. Certainly nobody contemplated the number of motor trucks that were to use these roads. The main arteries of travel, when

Heavy Rains Crack Wall In Arizona

Trains and Motor Traffic Tied Up and Property Damage Is Heavy

YUMA, Ariz., Feb. 14.—(UP)—Flood waters which poured over Wellton, Ariz., last night were receding today, leaving in their wake a toll of eight dead and a vast amount of property damage.

An avalanche of water, released when a retaining wall north of Wellton collapsed, crashed through the middle of the desert town. Small houses and tourist cabins were washed away and an automobile was swept from the highway.

According to the sheriff's office, two persons are known to be dead and six more are missing. Train service and communication lines were disrupted.

The vast quantity of water had been accumulating in the hills, back of a protective wall, for two days during which time the heaviest rains Arizona has known in a decade fell.

Finally, the pressure of the water became too great and the wall gave way with a crash. Inhabitants of Wellton, who fled for their lives, said the flood hit the town as though it were a solid instead of a liquid mass.

Rolling down the slopes toward the desert, the water approached in one block which was approximately five feet high and 300 feet wide.

Tourist cabins, placed on the desert without foundations, were tossed about like drift wood while those who had occupied them a few minutes prior to the flood fled in terror toward higher ground.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

EAST VAUGHN, (N.M.) Feb. 14.—[To the Editor of The Register:] We left Texarkana at daylight yesterday in a hard rain and low fog. Made Fort Worth, then same condition clear across Texas, but here we hit a real snowstorm and Capt. Hawks couldn't see, so we landed on an emergency government landing field. A committee immediately waited on me to speak here on behalf of a snow relief fund.

Friday the thirteenth may not be exactly unlucky but it didn't do us a whole lot of good.

WILL ROGERS.

RELIEF TOTAL IN SANTA ANA IS OVER $5000

Contributions to Red Cross In This District Are Well Over Quota

CONTRIBUTIONS for the Red Cross relief fund today passed the $5,000 mark, with checks and cash still coming into the hands of local Red Cross officers. Since the quota given the southern part of the county, not including Orange, is $4,000, the contributions are now 25 per cent beyond the quota. According to Red Cross leaders, the quotas are given merely as marks to try for, and no community is in any way limited in the total it shall give. Rather, with the tremendous need that exists throughout several stricken states, the only justifiable quota is the reasonable capacity of a community to give to this particular cause.

Included in today's contributions is $50 from a woman who had already given $25.

PETROLEUM CHIEF ASKS OIL EMBARGO

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(UP)—Robert Penn, vice president and director of the Petroleum Institute of America, told the house ways and means committee today that the Mellon and Rockefeller oil interests are opposed to any tariff or embargo on crude or refined petroleum.

Testifying in support of proposed limitation of crude oil imports, and an embargo on refined products, Penn said he was speaking as an individual oil man, and not as an officer of the institute.

REPORT NOW WILL GO TO HOUSE VOTE

Senate Approves $20,000,000 Drought Compromise By 67 to 15 Vote
PASSAGE IS ASSURED
Bill As Passed Is Amendment to Interior Department Appropriation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(UP)—The senate today approved the $20,000,000 drought relief compromise.

The senate voted to adopt the conference report on the interior department bill. The report now goes to the house, where speedy adoption is expected. The compromise is in the form of an amendment to the interior department bill.

The vote on adoption of the report was: For adoption, 67; against adoption, 15.

Vote on the measure came by prearrangement at 2 p. m., after heated denunciation of what was termed a "fact-saving" device by several senators, including Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, Borah, Republican, Idaho, Couzens, Republican, Michigan, and Glass, Democrat, Virginia.

It has been expected that the senate would have to vote first on a motion of Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, to recommit the conference report, but shortly after noon Thomas withdrew his motion.

Eight Republicans, six Democrats and Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, voted against the report. They were: Republicans—Borah, Couzens, Cutting, Frazier, Johnson, LaFollette, Norris and Schall; Democrats—Barkley, Bulky, Connally, Glass, Thomas, Oklahoma, and Wheeler.

Four other Republicans who would have voted against the report were present but were paired and could not vote.

They were Blaine, Brookhart, Norbeck and Nye. They were paired respectively with Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, Hawes, Democrat, Missouri, Deneen, Republican, Illinois, and Williamson, Democrat, Kentucky, all of whom were absent.

The conference report was sent immediately to the house, where it was laid on Speaker Longworth's table for action later. When the messenger announced the senate had approved the bill, there was a ripple of applause.

The senate galleries filled quickly shortly before the vote and many members of the house came to the senate floor to watch the proceedings. After adopting the conference report the senate immediately took up the legislative appropriation bill, which carries $27,067,835.

MISS CRUICKSHANK WINS NO. 5 RANKING

Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana today was given the No. 5 position among women tennis stars in national rankings announced by the U. S. Lawn Tennis association. Miss Cruickshank is national intercollegiate champion. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cruickshank.

John Deeg, another Californian, was No. 1 in the men's division.

NINTH BIRTHDAY OF LIONS CLUB IS CELEBRATED

Celebrating the ninth anniversary of the club's charter presentation, the Santa Ana Lions club members and their women guests enjoyed their annual party last night, starting with a dinner at Ketter's cafe and ending with a theater party at the Fox West Coast theater as guests of Lion Norman Sprowl, local theater manager.

Rex Kennedy was program chairman, the Lions club quartet entertained, Sprowl gave several character readings in a humorous vein, and three new members were initiated into the Lions club, including Ernie Davies, Walter Holst, and Jack Campbell. Lion Tamer Harold Yost conducted the ceremony, and the new members were officially welcomed by "Doc" Rowland, first president of the club. Copies of the Lions Code of Ethics were presented to the new cubs by President Homer Chaney.

Charles Gammer, member of the Long Beach Lions club, was the speaker of the evening, and gave an address on the current improvements in the value of human relations, citing transportation and communication as outstanding in bringing human beings into closer contact with each other.

Each opportunity brings its responsibility, the speaker said, but when the attendant responsibility is refused, then the opportunity is gone. Advances made during the past 30 years, bringing greater opportunities to the people than for hundreds of previous years, the speaker continued, increase the responsibilities of learning to live honorably and peacefully together, with due regard for the rights of others. Proper development of the young men and women of the land is the greatest obligation of all, Gammer said in closing.

Dick Ewert is program chairman for next Thursday, when the Lions will participate in a golf tournament at the Santa Ana Country club.

GLENN MARTIN TO VISIT HERE SOON

Glenn Martin, well known plane manufacturer and former resident of Santa Ana, who built and flew his first ship here, is on his way to this city with his mother, Mrs. C. Y. Martin, from Baltimore, where he is in the airplane manufacturing business.

Martin and his mother are stopping enroute in New Orleans and his father, who lives at 810 Minter street, expects to hear from them definitely regarding their visit here within the next few days. They are traveling by train.

DEATH COMES TO ALBERT WILLSEY

Albert L. Willsey, 59, died at his home at 523 South Garvey street this morning after an illness of a year's duration.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace Willsey, two sons, Maurice Willsey, of Yorba Linda, and Charles Willsey of Taft; and one brother, Frank Willsey, of 1006 Myrtle street, Santa Ana.

Announcement of services will be given later by the Winbloss Funeral home.

Protection Asked In Divorce Case

A restraining order to prevent her husband from molesting her during the pendency of her divorce trial is asked in connection with a divorce decree and custody of children in a complaint which was filed in superior court yesterday by Lora E. Anderson against John K. Anderson. They were married January 11, 1924, and separated February 8, 1931. Mrs. Anderson charges that on numerous occasions her husband has struck her, in one instance knocking her unconscious. She also asserted that the defendant bodily ejected her from their home and threw her clothes in the street. They have five children.

Calvin Coolidge Says . . . . .

BY CALVIN COOLIDGE

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 14. — A new social force is being developed by radio waves. The address of the Pope was given wider broadcasting than any other ever delivered, reaching almost all over the world. The morning papers carry radio photographs of Marconi in Rome preparing for its transmission. Report comes simultaneously of a successful experiment in television by which people in Leipzig were able to recognize the image of a man in Schenectady. The time may not be far away when it will be possible to have a receiving set in the home that will produce a sound motion picture. Central stations may be able to receive and broadcast to the eye and ear events taking place all over the world. It is difficult to comprehend what an enormous power this would be. New forces are constantly being created for good or for evil. When primitive people come in contact with civilization usually they use its power for their own destruction. Unless the moral power of the world increases in proportion to its scientific power there is a real danger that the new inventions will prove instruments of our own destruction. If moral development keeps step peace and good will have gained new allies.

YANK DIVISION COMMANDER IS CALLED TODAY

United States Infantry at New Orleans.

During the Philippine campaigns Edwards was cited four times for conspicuous gallantry. He returned to the United States as escort of the body of General Lawton, who was killed in the fight at San Mateo.

Edwards then was made chief of the bureau of insular affairs. From 1912 until before the World war he served successively in Texas, Hawaii, and the Panama canal zone.

Assuming of the 26th (Yankee) Division in May, 1917, he organized it during the summer and in September the division, composed of New England troops, sailed for France.

With the 11th French corps, the Yankee division saw 46 days of action in the Cheminades-Dames sector and then was transferred to the Marne salient.

Perhaps the best claim of the 26th to fame was its frustration of the right flank of the German offensive at Vaux on July 15, 1918. This was during the last enemy offensive. At St. Mihiel the division joined the American first division and closed the St. Mihiel salient.

At the start of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, the 26th played a prominent role as a decoy, and later won a citation from the French corps commander.

Edwards was relieved of his war-time command on October 24, 1918—only 18 days before the signing of the armistice. He went as he bade his troops farewell.

The general's sorrow at this time was twofold: he had just learned of the death from pneumonia of his only child—a daughter, Bessie—while she was serving as a nurse at Camp Lee, Va.

In Paris, on route home, Edwards chanced upon a doughboy discharged because he had lied to a recruiting officer in order to get to France. The discharged soldier asked the general to take him home.

"Son," Edwards said, "I'll not only take you home with me, if it can be done, I'll tell those who turned you out of the army that they ought to be in better business than turn a boy adrift whose only crime is that he told a white lie to serve under the Stars and Stripes."

Edwards, whose record, uncovered by Herman Zabel, of the identification bureau, shows that he also has been known as Jack Burns, Ral L. Wilder, Roy Lee Wilder and Ted Wilder, is being held here on a charge that he and John Pastnick, who was arrested with him, stole an automobile owned by T. P. Corcoran, of Fullerton driving it to Phoenix where they were arrested.

The record of the man shows that he served a term in the Illinois State reformatory for stealing a horse; that he was in jail at Colorado Springs, Colo., and broke jail on February 23, 1917; that he was sent to Fort Leavenworth during his stay in the army during the war, having been sentenced for violation of Section 47 of the articles of war; that he was sentenced to the Wyoming state penitentiary for grand larceny in 1920, and was paroled from there, but later participated in a box car robbery and was sent back as a parole violator and was again released in 1923; that he was arrested in Texas in 1927 in Great Falls, Mont., on a grand larceny charge and that he was committed to the Montana reformatory and served two years.

Burton is said to have admitted to local authorities that he is now wanted for escape from jail, but he has refused to state where and for what offense.

In Justice Kenneth Morrison's court today he waived his preliminary examination, indicating that he would plead guilty to grand theft here and be sent to Folsom prison before any further charges are lodged against him, according to Zabel.

Funeral services for James Fitzpatrick will be held Monday.

Funeral services for James Fitzpatrick, well known Santa Ana property owner, who was killed Thursday night near San Clemente by an automobile which he attempted to flag, will be held Monday morning at 9 o'clock at the St. Joseph's Catholic church, it was announced today.

Following the services, the body will be taken to Los Angeles for burial in Calvary cemetery mausoleum.

Fitzpatrick was almost instantly killed when he was struck by an automobile driven by W. E. Harper of Rancho Santa Fe. The accident occurred on the Coast highway, just north of San Clemente. A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Harper from any blame for Fitzpatrick's death, returning a verdict of accidental death.

Anaheim Gets .13 Of Inch Of Rain

Rainfall of .13 of an inch was recorded in Anaheim yesterday. Most of this amount fell between 3 and 3:30 p. m. from a single cloud that hung over the city. This brings the storm total to .63 and the year's total to 7.41 against 5.97 at this same time last year.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

The one you loved was always two inches inside, and that sweeter, dearer, finer person known only to you.

The first to cease to be when the heart stopped beating, but that real person you love is eternally alive and is as truly with you now as when your dear one walked beside you in the flesh.

Paradise seems far off to you because your eyes are hidden. In reality it is so close that you are never away from it so long as you strive to be brave and true.

OFFICERS TEST USE OF RADIO AS CRIME CURB

Preliminary tests of sending and receiving radio messages by sheriff's officers in the sheriff's office and in cars racing at high speeds over Orange county boulevards, held yesterday, proved highly satisfactory, according to a statement made today by Herman Zabel, of the identification bureau, who is experimenting with various equipment.

The purpose of the tests is to find out the feasibility of using radio in police work throughout the county. Zabel reported that with the aid of other deputies and Glenn Litten and Roy Tindall, radio technicians, messages were shot out of the sheriff's office to police cars in various parts of the county yesterday afternoon with amazingly good results.

At one time Zabel was riding in a car in Fullerton when the loud speaker in the car suddenly ordered him to call the sheriff's office. He rushed to the police station at Fullerton and called Sheriff Logan Jackson. Just two minutes had expired from the time the call was sent out over the air, until Zabel was talking with the sheriff.

In another test, Zabel and deputies were riding near Olive when a similar demand was made. There was no telephone at the first house the officers stopped at but only four minutes were required to get in touch via telephone with Jackson, he reported.

"The employment of radio, in connection with police work in the county will mean the equivalent of adding 10 men to the force," Zabel said, after the tests.

The tests are being made by the sheriff's office with the thought of asking for a large sum of money for equipment in the June budget. Sheriff Jackson has announced.

If plans work out, the sending apparatus will be stationed at the sheriff's office and each deputy's car will be equipped with receiving sets. Thirty minute broadcasts will be held at which time all information will be sent out and the cars will be equipped to receive emergency calls from any point in the county.

All sets will be short wave affairs, tuned in at the same wave length and it will be the idea of the sheriff's officers to co-operate with all city police stations by having the various cities purchase, at a nominal cost, receiving sets so that they too can hear the reports from the sheriff's office.

DAMAGE SUITS ASK TOTAL OF $33,299

Damage awards totaling $33,299.15 are asked in two suits which were filed in superior court today as a result of automobile accidents.

Ernest Adler asked $20,908 from Paul Bowen and others for injuries which he received in a crash which he claims was due to the negligence and carelessness of the defendants. The accident occurred July 16, 1930, and the case was brought into superior court today on a change of venue from Los Angeles county.

J. T. Mock and his wife, Sue, are plaintiffs in the other action, which is directed against Agnes Rasmussen et al. Mock asserts he suffered a broken leg and other injuries and that he was struck and knocked down by a car operated by the defendants as he was crossing a street in Anaheim last November. He asks $10,000 personal damages and $391.15 for medical attention. His wife is asking $2000 damages as a result of the accident to Mock.

At 7:30 p. m. today another of the series of Saturday night lectures was given at the Seventh Adventist church, corner of Fifteenth and Sycamore streets. The topic will be "Untempered Mortar" as mentioned in the Bible.

The district field scout meet that was scheduled to take place in the Olive bowl tonight has been postponed until February 28, according to information received from scout headquarters.

UNEMPLOYED WORKERS ARE ECONOMIC LOSS TO CITY

By WAYNE GOBLE

When a willing worker is unemployed for a week, the entire community suffers an economic loss of a week's productive labor. This lost time and this loss of production can never be regained—it is gone forever.

Multiply one man's lost time by millions, and you can see what a great loss is being suffered by the United States through unemployment.

The country loses as a whole, but each individual community where idle workers live are the greatest sufferers.

Which means that the leaders in each community must get busy and relieve unemployment in their communities, or else continue to suffer the loss which is reaching staggering figures.

Government is doing all it can, by putting on extra crews and planning public works. Too much PLANNING to date, compared with the actual DOING.

Putting fifty thousand men to work in March doesn't help them very much in February. They can't live on promises and hope.

People must eat on Feb. 6 as well as on March 6, and the idle workers want jobs—not next month, but RIGHT NOW.

Create an odd job about the house or garden, and put a man to work for a day—a week.

You will thus help to keep him economically independent and lessen the economic loss to the community through unproductive time. YOU can help to make labor-hours in this town PRODUCTIVE.

W. M. Burke May Run for School Board Position

Inquiry today in connection with possible candidates for positions on the Santa Ana board of education, following the announcement Thursday evening that two members of the board had definitely decided not to become candidates for reelection and that the other three were undecided, resulted in mention of the name of W. Maxwell Burke, attorney.

Burke, it was learned, has been urged to permit the use of his name on the ballot for election to the school administration board, and is not averse to making the race. When asked to verify the rumors of his candidacy, the attorney replied that many citizens had talked with him in connection with the matter and as a result he was seriously considering the proposition.

JOHNSON HELD ON CHARGE OF FLEEING BANK

H. Elmore Johnson, 48, alias Ralph W. Topkins, Ralph W. Tobias and Carl A. Bostick, who walked into the county jail several days ago and gave himself up as a man wanted here for the asserted theft of approximately $8000 from the First National bank of Santa Ana in 1924, was arraigned in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court on the six-year-old complaint today.

His bail was set at $5000 which he has not as yet made, and his preliminary examination has been set for February 18, at 9 a. m.

The First National bank, victim of the clever scheme which Johnson is said to have employed at the time he obtained the money, through the issuance of a cashier's check, is not particularly interested in the case according to President A. J. Crookshank, for the reason that the bank has been paid back the money from insurance companies, he said today.

The statute of limitations on virtually all felonies in this state expires in two years time and it is a question of law as to whether the filing of the complaint against Johnson in 1924 counteracts the statute in this particular case. The district attorney is not announcing his plans in the case and refuses to discuss this angle of the case.

In the meantime, Johnson is being held in the county jail awaiting preliminary examination. That he is an ex-convict is shown in his record sent out by the sheriff's office in 1924 at the time of the asserted crime here. He has previously served time in Folsom prison but was last known to have been discharged in 1916, the record shows.

Local Briefs

Several members of the Rabbit Breeders' association of Orange county attended a conference held last night in the farm advisor's office in Riverside. Committees from rabbit associations in the district attended the meeting, which was held to discuss the ways and means of establishing a rabbit meat auction market.

Members from Orange county who attended are: C. E. Dowless, Santa Ana; H. Louis, of Garden Grove; E. F. Shade, of Costa Mesa; A. H. Windinger, Costa Mesa; and W. M. Cory, assistant farm advisor, of Santa Ana.

At 7:30 p. m. today another of the series of Saturday night lectures was given at the Seventh Adventist church, corner of Fifteenth and Sycamore streets. The topic will be "Untempered Mortar" as mentioned in the Bible.

The district field scout meet that was scheduled to take place in the Olive bowl tonight has been postponed until February 28, according to information received from scout headquarters.

KEYES RETURNED FROM SAN JOSE

Harry W. Keyes, returned here today from San Jose, where he was arrested on a charge of non-support of wife, was arraigned in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court shortly before noon. His bail was fixed at $1000.

Keyes was returned to Santa Ana by Deputy Sheriff Merle Dean. San Jose police arrested the man on charges from here. The charge against Keyes is a felony.

At 7:30 p. m. today another of the series of Saturday night lectures was given at the Seventh Adventist church, corner of Fifteenth and Sycamore streets. The topic will be "Untempered Mortar" as mentioned in the Bible.

LINCOLN STILL IDOL DESPITE MASTERS' BOOK

It doesn't make any difference what Masters says about Lincoln. It doesn't make any difference what anyone says about him, he will remain and always will remain an idol in the hearts of the people. Dr. Bruce Baxter, assistant to the president of the University of Southern California, said in a speech to the members and wives of the Knights of the Round Table when they met in Ketter's cafe yesterday noon.

Dr. Baxter deplored the fact that Edgar Lee Masters' recently published biography of Lincoln is said to have called him a smooth, crafty politician who was lazy and selfish. In speaking of Lincoln, Baxter told of the humanness of the man and recited several incidents that proved him to be honest, capable and unselfish. He told how Lincoln had failed in business, failed for years as a politician, and after almost an entire lifetime of failures had, in spite of this, attained the highest position in the United States, the presidency.

All of the wives of club members and many guests were present to hear Dr. Baxter speak at the meeting yesterday.

As the musical portion of the program, Robert Brown sang two Scottish numbers, accompanied on the piano by Harry Warner.

Cement Pipe Job Nearly Finished

The $15,000 contract of laying 30,000 feet of high pressure cement pipe and 4000 feet steel pipe for Capistrano Acres at San Juan Capistrano is nearing completion, according to Fred L. Schwendeman, of the Tustin Cement Pipe company, whose firm is furnishing pipe and installing it. This is one of the largest jobs of its kind in Orange county and is on the first unit of the 500 acres of this subdivision which is to be developed.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Money Back if One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness and bloating that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gaspy.

You think perhaps you are suffocating.

You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done?

Just one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

ALFRED E. SMITH

will come when even the 44-foot road will not meet requirements. It is always easy to add another ten feet to the side of the road, but a bridge, once constructed, cannot be widened, except at probably a greater cost than the construction of an entirely new one.

One of the important obstacles to highway construction is always the question of cost, which in the last analysis must be borne by taxation. In New York State we pay for a certain amount of highway construction and, of course, for the maintenance of highways out of current revenues. But in 1906, when the whole state boasted only a few macadam roads and most of the roads were the old type country roads that were impassable during the wet weather or during the spring thaw, it became apparent that automobile travel was increasing rapidly and making a great demand on the highway system. The state bonded itself at that time for fifty million dollars by vote of the people to construct a state system of improved highways.

I have never favored paying for public improvements which have life extending over a period of years out of current revenues.

It has never seemed right to me to make one generation pay entirely for the benefits which are to be enjoyed by several generations to follow. When the proposal for the bond issue was argued in the State Senate the real reason for making such a large bonded appropriation became apparent. Only by the assurance of the availability of a large sum of money over a period of years could you be sure of continued appropriations of public money to carry out the system.

Obviously the failure to make continued provision for the work might make the work already begun a total loss. The recent unemployment situation shows many projects all over the country begun and then allowed to lie idle for years, waiting for the appropriations of additional public money or sometimes abandoned altogether because of cost.

Every executive likes to make a record of economy, but usually has to do it at the expense of some necessary public improvement. The first fifty million dollar bond issue appropriated by New York for state highways was expended by 1915, and in that year the people approved an additional appropriation of the same amount of money so that the building of the highway system was carried on without interruption.

The revenues of the state are sufficient now to make a definite annual appropriation for new highways of over $5 million dollars, likewise the Federal government's appropriation for road construction runs between 75 and 100 million dollars and is apportioned to the various states which meet it with like amounts. The higher figure was reached because of an endeavor to make construction of new highways aid unemployment.

I believe that every state in the union will receive back in increased realty values and in the promotion of trade and commerce every single dollar that is expended on modern highway construction.

Improved highways in the State of New York have opened up the Adirondack and Catskill Mountains, and in fact every part of the state, to a larger number of people than could ever possibly visit them by means of the railroad. I was a member of the Legislature eight years before I saw Lake George. I never had any reason to go by rail, but pleasure-riding in automobiles brings all of these places close to everybody.

My first visit to the Adirondack Mountains was in 1899, when I went to a Summer School at Lake Champlain with an amateur theatrical company. I had fixed the Adirondack Mountains in my mind as being so far away from New York that in all probability I would never get a second look at them. After traveling by boat to Albany, it took a whole day to get to Plattsburg. In recent years, during my tours of inspection, I have left Albany in the morning in an automobile and played golf at Lake Champlain that afternoon.

All this has brought business and trade to sections of the country which before the advent of good roads and the automobile were not known to people generally. As you ride through the country parts of the United States today, the sign that most frequently greets your eye is "Tourists Accommodated." That has given to the people of the country an opportunity to share in the wealth produced by the use of the automobile. Lunch stations, places of scenic and historic interest and the park systems are all made accessible. To continue this growth and meet it adequately so that the states will benefit from it, there must be a system of improved hard roads in every state that will stand up under the traffic and promote the growth of the community.

In olden times when the old horse and carriage were in order it took a half day to go down to Coney Island. I remember the old dirt road which afterward became Ocean Parkway. Following the horse and wagon came the bicycle, and then the automobile. With daylight saving, shop and factory workers can leave for Coney Island and be in swimming in less than an hour after they leave Manhattan. New York State's great system of parks, spread out from Niagara Falls to Montauk Point, would not be of much use to city dwellers without the automobile, and the automobile would be useless without the improved state road.

When I was a boy all the fruit and produce grown on Long Island was brought into Queensboro by rail and car-floated by rail around the harbor of New York to the various piers, to reach the markets where they were sold, necessitating about four handlings of the product. Today, the modern truck, in less time than it took to car-float the produce, brings it directly from the farm to the market in a single handling. This is an efficiency and an economy that is definitely traceable to the benefits of improved highways. That experience is being duplicated throughout the country. One of the largest single elements of costs of commodities of today is transportation. Anything that tends to cheapen it reflects benefit in everyday family life.

I have always felt that Federal aid to the states for highways was a good thing. The backward state that is unwilling to appropriate its own funds for its own highway construction finds itself contributing to the good roads of the other states through the agency of the Federal government. It is unquestionably the duty of the strong states to help the weak ones. In states where distances are great and the population comparatively small, as Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, you pass through large areas of territory where there is little wealth. Just as the small village is sometimes assisted by the country or the state, so some of these less affluent states must be assisted by the Federal government to improve their highway system. It is no satisfaction to the man who desires to cross the continent to have spread out in front of him every now and then a few hundred miles of impassable roads. In the construction of highways, it is necessary to take the broad viewpoint that the United States belongs to us all and what improves the values or promotes the growth of one locality is reflected in others.

MAY CUT FARMER'S AUTO TAX

PARIS—The French Chamber of Deputies is considering a project to cut in half the tax on automobiles used by a farmer in delivering his produce, or by a doctor, lawyer or other professional in the exercise of his work. There was such a law in 1920, but it was suppressed in 1924.

LANSDOWNE IS TO DIRECT NEW LYNNWOOD STORE

J. C. Lansdowne, who recently resigned as manager of the J. C. Penney company store here, left today with his family for Lynwood, and announced at the same time that he will open a new store there, which will be one of a group operated by Lansdowne and his associates under the name of R. L. Menasco corporation.

Lansdowne said a number of the men interested in the corporation formerly were connected with the Penney organization. Each store manager will own at least a one-half interest in the store he operates, Lansdowne said.

He expressed regret on leaving the friends he has made here and on leaving Santa Ana, but pointed out that his new business opportunity will take him to Lynwood.

REV. RICHEY WILL GIVE TALK TONIGHT

Sunday at 2:30 p. m. there will be an Orange county fellowship meeting when all the Four Square churches of Orange county will co-operate with a special musical program. The Rev. Louise Richey will speak on the subject, "Can Pentecost be Repeated."

Sunday at 7 p. m. the band will open with several numbers followed by a song service conducted by Alice Wilson Parham. An illustrated sermon on "God's Valentine" will be given by the Rev. Louise Richey.

The Rev. John Richey and the Rev. Wilfred Parham will conduct an evangelistic meeting in Pomona Sunday night.

Kiwanis Head In Talk Before Club At San Clemente

SAN CLEMENTE, Feb. 14.—Don Rice, Oakland, governor of the California Kiwanis district of Kiwanis, was a visitor at the Friday noon meeting of the San Clemente-San Juan Capistrano Kiwanis club held at A. Travaglini's cafe. He spoke of small club problems and stated that in the smaller clubs a greater spirit of Kiwanis co-operation and good will was built up than in larger organizations.

Jarvis Price, field service representative from headquarters at Chicago, also was present.

The principal address of the day was made by Trafford Hutson, past president of the local organization, who talked on salmon fishing in Alaska waters, relating his experiences in a large cannery one season.

Win Keel, president, announced that the next meeting would be held at San Juan Capistrano and that Dan Mulherson, trustee, would relate his adventures on his recent trip to Mexico City.

New Bridge Will Join Buildings

Workmen are pouring concrete for the new floor of the bridge connecting the first floors of the courthouse and hall of records. Work has been progressing all week on this change from a wooden floor to one of rough concrete. The change was ordered by officials after a severe injury sustained in a fall on the slippery wooden floor by Mabel Wiseman, clerk in the office of Justice Kenneth E. Morrison. Many other persons have had falls on the bridge during wet weather and the change was deemed advisable by county officials in the interest of safety. No change is contemplated in the bridge connecting the second floor of the two buildings, it is said.

Huge Egg Laid By Santa Ana Biddy

A hen's egg, measuring six inches around the center and seven and a half inches, measured around the ends, is being exhibited today by A. H. Rohrs, rancher, who resides on East Seventeenth street. The egg was laid by a Rhode Island Saco hen, one of the prize chickens that Rohrs owns and according to Rohrs the hen laid the egg out in an orange grove near his home.

MONKEY TRAINER, ORCHESTRA LEADER IN COMIC ARGUMENT ON KREG-FOX FROLIC TODAY

If anything can supply more fun than an argument between an excited monkey trainer and a temperamental orchestra leader it will have to pack a laugh a second. And that's about what tonight's comic feature will extract from listeners on the KREG-Fox West Coast theaters frolic, which will go on the air at 10:30 p. m. and last until midnight.

The argument started at a rehearsal in the Fox West coast theater here the other day and at last reports was ready to break out again at any moment. The final round will be on the air tonight when Milt Foster, leader of the Fox theaters orchestra, and Cal Nourse, as the monkey trainer, get wound up.

Norman Sprowl, Fox theaters manager here and master of ceremonies for the frolic, announced today the list of frolic artists. At the same time Bob Sprowl, program director for the station, invited fans to come up to the studio to witness the frolic.

The program will include the Lewis sisters, saxophones and clarinet players; Sergeant and Lewis, comedy team and guitar artists; Joan McGowan, triple voiced girl, who was unable to attend the last frolic; Jimmy Base, composer of "Just Imagine," which he will sing, and Ed Dennison, harmony team; Don Harris, well known singer; Bob Sprowl and Harris in duet numbers, and the Fox orchestra.

MEMBERS OF NEW BEACH CLUB MEET

SEAL BEACH, Feb. 14.—Members of the newly-organized R. B. club met for their second meeting at the home of Mrs. Yvette Coltrun Thursday afternoon. The meeting was devoted to the business of organization and of discussing future plans of the club. It was decided that the club would hold meetings twice monthly, on the second and fourth Thursdays. The valentine motif was carried out in the delicious refreshments served by the hostess, Mrs. Coltrun. Mrs. Norma Crandall will entertain the club at their next meeting on February 26. Charter members of the organization are Jane Glynn, Pearl Steele, Yvette Coltrun, Helen Woodring, Norma Crandall, Darlene Thompson, Evelyn Prontice, Kate Case, Betty Gise, Dorothy Mae Gross, Esther Dennis and Ruth Head.

Lacy Store, Trott Offer KREG Hour

Radio listeners who tune in on KREG Monday night will have an opportunity of hearing a singer who has gained national attention, on a program sponsored by the Lacy Furniture company, 506 North Broadway, and H. R. Trott, of the watch and clock department there. Harris won the Atwater Kent audition for the state of Oregon in 1928. He is now living with his brother, K. O. Harris, in Santa Ana.

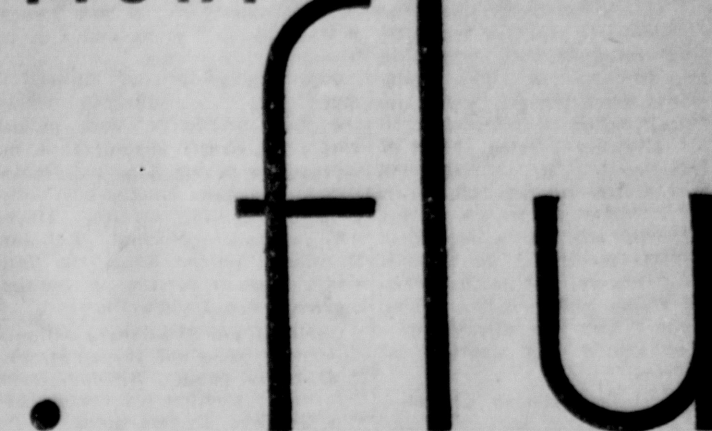

The Lacy store and Trott will sponsor a daily program over KREG, the first of which will be heard Monday from 7 to 7:30 p. m. The program will be on the air daily at the same time.

The program sponsors announced today that they will give away a watch, an occasional chair and a porcelain kitchen clock, which are on display in the Lacy Furniture store window. In addition to the musical and entertainment features of the programs each night, announcements of interest to Santa Ana and Orange county shoppers will be made.

Fremont Pupils Give Slave Play

ANAHEIM, Feb. 14.—"The Underground Railway" was the title of a play given at the assembly meeting of the Fremont intermediate school yesterday afternoon by members of the drama club under the direction of Miss Ada Garfield, dramatics instructor. The play was given in observance of Lincoln's birthday and was a story of the system slave runners used to use to transport slaves from the south into northern territory so that the slaves could be free.

SOME SIMPLE WAYS TO FIGHT

EVERY DAY now, national and local authorities are issuing urgent requests for precautionary measures against the spread of flu, colds and pneumonia.

Their advice is simple and sensible. The exact cause of flu is not definitely known. But a weakened run-down condition may expose us to greater risks of flu—just as it may expose us to greater risks of other diseases. So the wise thing is to build up our vitality and resistance. Keep free from worry. Avoid exposure and over-fatigue. Get plenty of nourishing food, sleep and exercise. And start at once to take a good, fortifying tonic.

Doctors advise Scott's Emulsion Scott's Emulsion is recommended by doctors because it brings the remarkable health-building and disease-resisting vitamins of cod-liver oil—in the pleasantest way. Scott's Emulsion is emulsified. So it's free from that strong "fishy" taste. Easier to take.

Easier to digest. And more quickly absorbed into the blood stream. As a result, Scott's Emulsion benefits you almost immediately. It promptly strengthens and revitalizes weakened systems. It improves your weight and appetite. It increases your resistance against the dread attacks of pesky colds and other winter ills.

Wonderful for children! Try Scott's Emulsion for pale, thin children, too. Made of purest, tested Norwegian cod-liver oil, Scott's Emulsion is rich in vitamin A, the growth-promoting vitamin that helps guard against disease. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It also contains vital mineral elements that aid in forming sound bones and teeth. And remember—Scott's Emulsion tastes good! Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day!

REV. W. J. HATTER, RECTOR

SANTA ANA, CALIF.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF THE LENTEN SEASON

"The Kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force"

Matt. 11:12

The opportunity of the Lenten Season:
Matthew 11:12.

"The Kingdom of Heaven Suffereth Violence, and the Violent Take It by Force."

The season of Lenten is recognized by many branches of Christ's Church as a special season when Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. Other Christian bodies have their special Missions or revivals. One of the greatest desires of the Christian hearts that could be requested at such times and particularly at this time would be moral earnestness. Christ said on one occasion "greater work shall ye do because I go to the Father" Looking over the universe at the present time where are these greater works that are to change the world? It is quite true there are many evidences of Christian influences which we must attribute to Christ, but these greater works are not accomplished largely because of lack of earnestness. Let us answer this direct question as a Christian Nation. What do the greater number of our people care about religion? Little or nothing. Many in response to an invitation to attend church say, "No, thanks, nothing doing." While others could answer just as honestly as the slum lad when approached, "to tell you the truth I never think about it from morning to night." These are not hostile, but frank in their indifference. Such are seldom influenced by Christ as He passes—they just don't care, and as a class are not confined to the male sex. What is the reason for this lack of earnestness? Are they difficulties about faith? Do you doubt the fundamentals about religion, then why not search for light?

For as one writer puts it, "Honest doubters are not sinners," but come under the category of sinners if they don't care and fail to approach Christ. So face your doubt if that is causing lack of earnestness.

We pass to another class, perhaps more common. They are not doubters nor unbelievers, and would be greatly hurt if classified as such, but they are not keen about religion—just slackers. Oh yes, they will come to church for some special attraction, for pictures, special music. Prayer life is recognized under extreme conditions—when in distress or facing death—but a general examination of their spiritual life would show little or no progress, and are no force in the place spiritually—no help to the church—a poor witness for Christ; for as far as they know not one soul has been helped by their example. Does this describe you, dear reader? If so—

Are you ready to meet Christ as He passes, or if called into His presence tonight? Remember your influence, such as it is, is making its mark upon young lives that surround you, and when Christ returns, to Him you will be responsible for years of wasted opportunity, and you cannot say "I did not know." Go to church. Your church—the place where Christ and His salvation is preached, and your Lenten Season will help you.

But there will be many who will read these lines who are regular church people. Has the Season of Lent no special message for you? Yes, certainly. For you it is a period of special examination. Will you please ask yourself the question, "Am I entirely satisfied with my life as I live it? Does my religion satisfy me or God?" Don't we feel sometimes that our religion is a cold, dead, mechanical thing? The trouble is just this: few of us realize the tremendous nature of that which we are doing week after week which relates to our church life or our religion. And why is that? With so many of God's dear people the trouble is that they are too familiar with their religion; too accustomed to it. So let us, dear people, His Lent or whenever the opportunity presents itself. Come back to moral education. Do let us realize as Christ passes what we are doing out of the church, in the church and for the church. The same might truly be said of us regarding the great moral and national problems. We are not earnest enough about them or we wait for the other fellow, excuse ourselves and think of a hundred other things assumed more important by our self-constituted tribunal.

The Church of the Messiah

Episcopal

Lastly, God forbid that we should be less in earnest about the conversion of the World to Christ. The Savior of men died for all, but is the Church of Christ in real earnest about this last and great Command of the Savior to "go into all the world." We need the devotion of the Jesuit Fathers, who, in this regard, gave their lives for Missionary Service without reserve and say as they go, "We never return." Let us seriously consider the foregoing and avail ourselves of this Lenten opportunity to be more earnest.

NEWS FROM THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

SAFETY AID IS SEEN IN BUICK TRANSMISSION

The large measure of driving safety afforded by the silent shift Synchro-Mesh type of transmission, such as is now used in all models of the 1931 Buick line, is believed to have done much to keep accidents at a minimum during the last few weeks when driving conditions have been decidedly unfavorable, due to wet streets and highways in many sections of the country.

Synchro-Mesh is now built into the lowest priced of the four Buick series, this change being announced at the opening of the National Automobile Show in New York this month.

"It has been definitely proven that to enlist the aid of the motor in slowing down one's car not only contributes much to life of the brakes and the entire car, but also is a tremendous safety factor whenever streets and highways are slippery," according to W. R. Gordon, salesmanager for the Buick Motor Company of Santa Ana.

"When we improved the Buick transmission, many different types were given thorough tests in our laboratories and at the General Motors Proving Ground, but none of them possessed the qualities of the Synchro-Mesh which we are now using. It is silent, safe, and instantaneous in its operation."

The facility and danger of using full braking power when attempting to stop on slippery pavements is being forcibly brought to our attention at this particular time of year. Mr. Gordon pointed out, "With Synchro-Mesh it is possible to use the entire braking effort applied by the compression of the motor, since one can shift quickly and easily from high to second and permit the engine to retard the speed of the car," says Mr. Gordon. "And in slowing down the car in this manner the speed of both rear wheels is retarded equally as a result of the action of the differential which transmits either driving force or braking effort from the engine to the wheels equally. Thus is 'skidding' on slippery roads prevented unless manual brake pressure is applied."

That business of selling Buicks in Santa Ana is on the incline was shown today by the Buick Motor company, which today added two new salesmen to the force, J. W. Bradford, formerly of Seattle where he was with Buick and Walter Gilley, formerly with L. D. Coffing here.

L. A.-OWENS VALLEY ROAD HARD SURFACE

Following completion of the last section, the Red Rock Canyon contract, the Midland Trail state highway from Los Angeles to Owens Valley is now hard-surfaced throughout.

This route, which is largely oil-mixed gravel pavement from Mojave to a point beyond Bishop, 290-odd miles north of Los Angeles, will be dedicated at a public celebration at Red Rock Canyon on Washington's Birthday, February 22, advises the Automobile Club of Southern California. Motorists are invited to attend and bring picnic lunches in order to remain for the festivities featured by band concerts and addresses of state and county officials.

The newly paved route makes more accessible the recreational regions of the desert and the Sierra Nevada.

Topango Canyon Road Completed

The construction work which has been under way in Topango canyon for the past several months, has been completed, according to the touring department of the National Automobile club. This route connects the Malibu highway, near Santa Monica, with Ventura boulevard at Girard.

Rubber Wins in Battle With Concrete

CR-R-R-R-RASH!

It is Sunday midnight and a big, high-powered sedan, bowling merrily down Broad street in Philadelphia goes head-on into a concrete light standard.

Even a few Philadelphians are awake at midnight and they examine the wreckage while the driver goes to a hospital.

They find the sturdy concrete standard demolished as well as the front end of the car, but they find the tires, which bore the full brunt of the blow, still intact.

The way the General Blow-out Proof tires lived up to their name is shown in the illustrations, the smaller of which shows, from the damaged rim, that the tires bore the full force of the blow but were not damaged.

NINE DEDUCTIONS ALLOWED MOTORISTS ON INCOME TAX

Nine important deductions are allowed motorists in filing federal income tax returns for 1931, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California, which has secured from the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue, a brief outline of allowable deductions, as well as important items of expense which cannot be deducted. Following are allowable deductions:

1. All sums paid during the calendar year as registration fees, driver's licenses, state personal property taxes and municipal taxes;
2. The total sum paid as a gasoline tax; figured on a three cent basis;
3. Interest on money borrowed for the purchase of an automobile used for either business or pleasure;
4. All operating and maintenance expense, including depreciation, on automobiles used wholly for business; or a pro rata share of such expenses, representing business use where a passenger car is chiefly (more than 50 per cent) for business. Depreciation usually is figured at 20 per cent per annum;
5. Automobile insurance on automobiles used for business purposes;
6. Uncompensated losses, sustained by reason of damage to any automobile used for either pleasure or business;

7. Damage paid for injuries to persons or for destruction of property, provided the automobile at the time of the accident was being used for business;

8. The amount of financing charges on automobiles purchased which covers the interest and risk on the loan, but not the amount covering the premium on insurance to protect the finance company's interest;

9. Loss sustained where an automobile used for business purposes is traded in for a new car.

The following two important items are not deductible, according to the automobile club:

1. The amount paid for an automobile used for either business or pleasure, this being a capital expenditure and subject to claim for depreciation where the automobile is used for business purposes;
2. Loss sustained where an automobile used for pleasure is traded in for a new car.

In making deductions, motorists must differentiate between business and pleasure vehicles and between tax payments and capital expenditures, the motor association points out.

December production of the Chevrolet Motor Company was 64,018 cars and trucks, more than twice the 26,000 units built in December 1929 and by a wide margin the biggest twelfth-month in the company's history, it is announced by W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager.

Employment of the company, which has registered consistent gains since the introduction of the 1931 models in November, stood at 32,101 for the week ended December 27th, a gain of 347 over the previous week, according to Mr. Knudsen. During the current month the employment figure is expected to climb to 40,000 men, Chevrolet's normal operating force.

December is the second consecutive month to register a new high production figure, November with an output of 45,000 Chevrolets exceeding all previous Novembers. The January schedule calls for the manufacture of 70,500 units and the tentative figure set for February, despite the short month, stands at 70,400 sixes, according to the Chevrolet executive.

When production of the new 1931 models got under way, employment in the manufacturing division of the company was 26,000. Since that time old employees have been added gradually, and with nearly 10,000 more scheduled to get back to work this month, all regular employees will be back on the job.

80 Percent Crashes Due To Drivers

Eighty per cent of all automobile accidents are caused by failure or mistake on the part of the operator, Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles of Connecticut, declared in a statement reaching the Automobile Club of Southern California.

"The other 20 per cent are the result of pure accident, highway defects, actual criminality or mechanical failure," Mr. Stoeckel said. "Considered as a cause alone, the automobile does not by its mechanical safety imperfections make many accidents."

"The automobile of the future probably will have shatter-proof glass in all its windows," he said, "and this will be kept clean of rain and sleet by an electric heating device in its frame. The gasoline tank will be so placed as to be the least possible hazard for occupants of the car, and brakes will have been made entirely efficient by the necessities of successful competition."

FORD TO MAKE SO. CAL. PLANT MUCH LARGER

Expansion of the Ford Motor company's program to make its Los Angeles-Long Beach plant the manufacturing and distributing center for the Pacific Coast area, the Orient, and the major portion of the western and southwestern states is indicated by the acquisition of 33 additional acres of the Union Pacific System's harbor and industrial area. The added area adjoins on the east the present Ford holdings of 40 acres on which an assembly plant was opened last April. Operation of the assembly plant was followed by the decision to undertake manufacturing on the west coast and construction of a pressed steel plant was ordered for the production of fenders, moods, and other sheet metal parts. Machinery is now being installed in this unit to assure completion and the starting of operation next month. When the assembly and pressed-steel plants, served by both water and Union Pacific rail facilities, are operated at full capacity of 400 cars daily, the Ford company will give employment to 2500 men, 2000 in the west coast and construction of a pressed steel plant and 500 in the assembly plant and 500 in the pressed steel plant. Floor space of these plants total 400,000 square feet. "The addition of the property in the Union Pacific harbor area is further evidence of the Ford Motor company's faith in a general business recovery and particularly in the future of Southern California," Ira B. Groves, manager, said. The new tract acquired is east of the present plant on Cerritos channel and will permit extension of manufacturing and assembly operations as needed, Mr. Groves added. Gasoline used by motor vehicles during 1930 amounted to 310,000,000 barrels and crude rubber came to 686,000,000 pounds.

Lubrication Neglect Exacts Heavy Toll

Lubrication neglect costs thousands of cars annually to automobile junk piles long before the service originally, in fact, has been delivered, says the Firestone dealer, is the first law of efficient and economical car performance. Systematic lubrication, says the Firestone establishment, maintains a complete lubrication department with the very latest high pressure system and a staff of lubricating engineers.

MILLION CARS IN NATION TOO OLD TO SELL

There are millions of automobiles in use in the United States which are too old to be sold or insured, according to a statement by the Automobile Division of the Department of Commerce reported to the Automobile Club of Southern California. Commenting on a private estimate, based on a nationwide survey, that there are 5,000,000 such cars, the division states it has no official data to substantiate the figure, although statistics available in the department indicate that the number of automobiles in use more than four years runs into the millions.

The problem of disposing of old cars has become a major one which the automobile industry is seeking to solve, the state continues. One of the attempts at a solution is the "junking plan," which has been adopted by several large manufacturers and is being tried by dealers' associations in some of the larger centers.

Only cars of low value can be satisfactorily handled under this plan, it is pointed out, and the value at which scrapping ceases to pay is still a matter of experimentation.

PLATT AGENT FOR MANSFIELD TIRES

Platt Auto Service, located at Third and Bush streets is the agency for the Mansfield De Luxe tires and Platt announced today that Mansfield is now shod with Duro-Mix, the new tread rubber developed in the Mansfield laboratories.

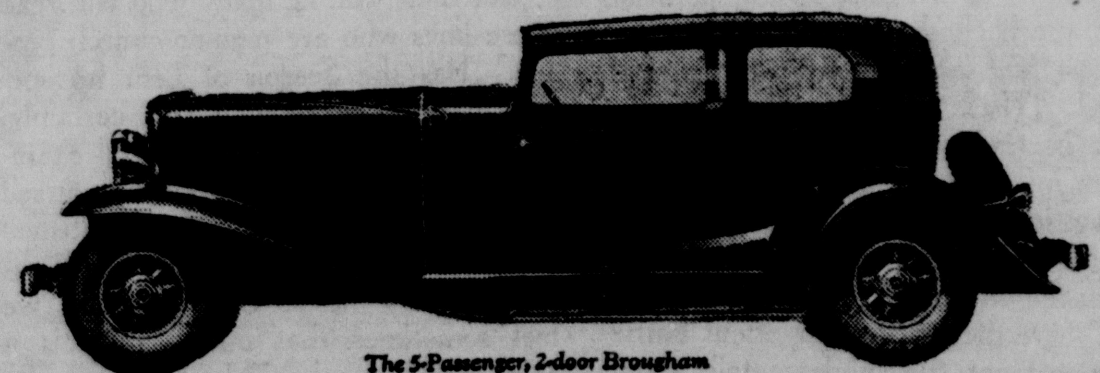

Duro-Mix possesses extra resistance to sustained speeds, better stands quick stops and sudden starts and clings to the pavement to make driving easier.

FACTORIES OF CHEVROLET ALL ON FULL TIME

Men working full time in all factories, building Chevrolet automobiles to fill the demand that is coming from all parts of the nation—that's the pleasant story that comes from Chevrolet Pacific Regional headquarters in the West.

"Dealers throughout the whole region and the whole country, are doing their best to secure enough new Chevrolet sixes to fill the orders they have in hand," states E. W. Fisher, Pacific regional manager of the Chevrolet Motor company. "The announcement of the new Chevrolet sixes in November, practically two months ahead of the usual season for new car announcements, has resulted in capacity operations throughout the country for the company's factories, which means that thousands of men have been given employment at a time of the year when many automobile factories are closed for inventory and to re-equip for new models. It has also given the dealers a chance to sell automobiles during the dull season of the year, when ordinarily there is small demand for motor cars.

"This year all that has been reversed. The announcement of new models has stimulated all industry. The response to the new model shows that there is money in the country and that the people will use it to purchase products that meet their fancy.

"The new Chevrolet models have 107 improvements and refinements. The wheel base has been lengthened two inches, the bodies, built by Fisher, are improved. New processes in body building are being employed to make the bodies stronger and quieter. Newly designed hardware is being used in the new models and upholstery has been refined and improved. Radiator grilles are standard equipment on all sport models and prices have been reduced to such an extent that the improved six cylinder cars are now selling at lower prices than the four cylinder cars sold for in 1929, the last year that Chevrolet built a four."

There are 3,024,233 miles of highways in the United States, of which 700,000 are surfaced.

It's an All-Year Touring Country

Winter fails to tie up our cars here in the west. We use them all year 'round. This view shows the new 1931 Chevrolet sport sedan with the chromium plated radiator grille, which is standard equipment on all sport models this year. Thousands of the new cars have been delivered to owners in the west since the car was announced last November.

Final Step in Assembly of Ford Cars

This is a scene from the moving picture of a tour through the plants of the Ford Motor Company, one of the features of the Ford road show. The picture shows the final assembly line on which the Ford is put together part by part as it moves slowly forward until at the end of the line the completed car is driven away under its own power. Parts are served the workmen by conveyors. Each part is timed to arrive at precisely the right moment.

In this illustration the chassis of the car in the foreground has been completed and a body is being lowered by a crane from a balcony.

State Gains 62,000 Cars During 1930

Net increase of 62,325 motor vehicles is shown in the registration total for 1930 just reported by the state Division of Motor Vehicles. Reaching well over the two million mark, the figures show exactly 2,089,233 vehicles, including motorcycles and trailers. The total is a three percent gain over 1929, not including approximately 36,000 cars registered under the license exempt classification nor the 91,247 cars registered from other states.

Of the total of 1,941,969 passenger cars, Los Angeles county led all others with 808,264, it is noted by the Automobile Club of Southern California. San Francisco county was next with 146,182 autos.

BANNING, IDYLLWILD ROAD IN BAD SHAPE

The road from Banning to Idyllwild, Riverside county, is in poor condition, and is not advisable, according to the touring department of the National Automobile club. Many slides caused by recent rains will be encountered.

Only 9 Percent Of Machines Are Now Open Models

In spite of the popularity of open sport models, the percentage of closed cars manufactured in the United States has continued to increase, it is reported to the Automobile Club of Southern California. Closed cars comprised ninety-one per cent of all cars produced in 1930, while in 1929 closed cars accounted for slightly more than eighty-one per cent of the production.

Formation of ice and sleet on the windshields of motor cars will be prevented in the near future, it is claimed, by the installation of a special glass heated electrically by means of nichrome wires embedded in the glass.

Every time a telephone rings an automobile has traveled six miles. There are 23,125,000 autos and 20,000,000 telephones operated in the United States.

The average retail price of cars decreased from $812 to $600 in 1930.

INCREASE SEEN IN CAR DEATHS HERE IN 1930

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 14.—(UP)—The "death curve" of motor vehicle accidents in California continues upward.

Despite stricter regulations and more careful vigilance by traffic officers, there were 140 more deaths in California last year than in 1929, according to Victor W. Killick, statistician for the state division of motor vehicles.

Accidents increased from 35,443 in 1929 to 41,237 for 1930. Despite this marked gain, automobile deaths are not increasing as fast as the population in this state, the report showed. The last census disclosed the fact that California is increasing in population at the rate of 6.5 per cent a year. Compared with this figure, the percentage of increase in automobile deaths in 1930 over 1929 was 6.23 per cent.

Deaths, population and gasoline consumption have all maintained about the same upward trend, ranging from 6.23 to 6.5 per cent increase annually.

More people are killed by excessive speed than any other single factor, Killick said.

"This bureau would deem it most unwise," he reiterated, "for the legislature to remove the speed limit on automobiles. We also feel it would be inadvisable to place unnecessary restrictions upon state traffic officers and other peace officers directed to enforce the act. "We do not believe in revising California's speed limits or in giving discretionary powers to the motoring public to drive "prudently and properly," in substitution of definite speed limits.

"The problem of controlling motor vehicle accidents in this state is one of the biggest matters that ever confronted the state government and the public. The time to experiment on control measures is past.

Introduced by Studebaker!
Adopted by Pierce-Arrow!
Adopted by Lincoln!
Elected by Acclaim!

free wheeling

WHEN the two finest cars in America pay Studebaker a magnificent compliment, Studebaker knows how to acknowledge it!

Never, in all the 79 years of its pioneering has any former Studebaker achievement received such swift and distinguished recognition!

Pierce-Arrow and Lincoln had no competitive scruples about following Studebaker... each paid the new dynasty of dynamics the tribute of adoption, and wrote into the constitution of their cars the epochal principles of Free Wheeling—intact and unmodified.

If you can afford the luxury of a Pierce-Arrow, buy one; if you can afford the luxury of a Lincoln, buy one; but if you can't afford either, remember that the most momentous thing in both of them is within your reach in the three great Studebaker Eights or the brilliant new Studebaker Six.

Simply keep in mind that a Free Wheeling Studebaker, however low in price, is the Free Wheeling equal of the two finest American automobiles that money will buy.

You may choose among them as to price, but there is nothing to choose among them as to Free Wheeling performance... all share equally in the benefit of momentum.

Free Wheeling with positive gear control rests your engine one mile in every five... cuts down the cost of gasoline, oil and tires... and minimizes strain and wear on engine and chassis.

With Free Wheeling, there's no need to touch the clutch in shifting from high to second or second to high. Anytime and anywhere you feel like it, you can take your foot off the accelerator and let your car idle along on its own momentum!... with the full braking power of your engine always instantly available at any speed.

Highway commissioners and safety directors throughout the country have driven Free Wheeling Studebakers and then voiced approval of Free Wheeling with positive gear control as a new measure of safety both to driver and public.

Studebaker, Pierce-Arrow, and Lincoln... all Free Wheeling... all recommended... which shall it be?

Studebaker cars are priced f. o. b. factory from $795 to $2600

150 Boys Attracted To Annual Reunion Of Y. M. C. A.

DAYS IN CAMP REGALLED WHEN GROUP GATHERS

ORANGE, Feb. 14.—Nearly 150 boys of Anaheim and Orange shared an annual reunion last night, reviewing the days they spent last summer at Camp Osceola. About 40 boys were present from Anaheim and they were accompanied by the secretary of the "Y" in that city, Conrad Jongewaard. The Anaheim and Orange groups have camped together at Osceola for some years.

The white raggers acted as leaders of the brown, blue and red groups and the event was opened with registration at the local "Y" building. Games were played at the American Legion clubhouse and at the "Y" building until the meeting was formally opened by the bugle call sounded by Walter Workman, when the boys went to the plaza and conducted the ceremony of taking down the colors.

Going to the Epworth hall of the First Methodist church, the boys were greeted by Mrs. Jennie Kenline, who has cooked for them in camp for the past six years. Mrs. Kenline was assisted in preparing last night's dinner by Mrs. Mattie McKinney.

The menu was a typical camp menu with "Italian delight" as the main course, supplemented by string beans, bread and butter, ripe olives, corn bread, cold slaw, strawberry jam and cocoa. Mrs. A. D. Burkett assisted in arranging the tables and which were very attractive and which were centered with gay bouquets.

Clifford Butler, last year's camp captain, acted as chairman in general charge of arrangements.

A note of Friday the 13th was introduced when some of the diners found fluffy cotton filling their slices of corn bread.

Returning to the "Y" building, the boys put on a program of stunts under the supervision of Clarence Thompson and sides were chosen and a game of basketball played.

Scenes of camp life last year, filmed by J. B. Wilbur, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., were shown by John Erickson, who acted as projectionist. Six reels were screened.

A miniature camp fire formed the nucleus around which the boys gathered and where the evening hour at the camp was reproduced.

The Rev. Thomas E. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Anaheim, closed the meeting with a quiet benediction and taps were sounded by the bugler.

Intruder Leaves His Coat, Vest On Porch In Orange

ORANGE, Feb. 14.—Ownership of a brown coat and vest is being sought by police officials here, the articles of clothing having been brought to the police station yesterday by G. L. Buhrman, 827 East Palm avenue.

The clothing was found on the back screen porch when Buhrman's daughter, returning from school, heard someone leave the house by the rear door. Nothing in the house was disturbed.

The coat and vest are of fine material, well tailored, dark brown in color with a light blue strip.

PROGRAM GIVEN IN EL MODENA SCHOOL

EL MODENA, Feb. 14.—An interesting program was given in the auditorium of the Lincoln school building this week. The Spanish club of the Orange high school under the direction of Miss Nobbs presented a play entitled, "The Trampers."

The play was followed by an educational program including a talk by Dr. Edward Lee Russell of the county health department on how to prevent tuberculosis from spreading. He explained how the county health department was organized to diagnose and care for this dangerous disease and urged the people to take advantage of the free clinic care. Stephen Reyes acted as interpreter for Dr. Russell.

A seven-piece orchestra secured by one of the night school boys, Salvador Bueno, who is an accomplished saxophone player, presented several numbers. About 250 were present.

Miss Phyllis Wanamaker, Americanization worker for adult Mexicans in El Modena, was well pleased with the response.

Card Party Held In Windolph Home

ORANGE, Feb. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Ed Windolph, 144 South Pepper street, entertained the Oklahoma Boosters club last evening. Dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock and the evening was spent in playing rummy. Those present with the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Richards and daughter, Eugenia; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Green, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Ingie, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Richards, Mrs. M. E. Bivens and daughter, Marie, Mrs. Gene Morgan and Mrs. Angeline Courtney. Mrs. Windolph was assisted by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Leo Windolph. Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bivens of 904 West Chapman street, will be the hosts for the next meeting.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS, THE FRIEND OF SINNERS

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 15, Jesus, the Friend of Sinners. Text: Luke 7:36-50.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of the Congregationalist.

Is a man known by the company he keeps? The prevailing opinion holds that he is, and in the main it is true that evil communications corrupt good manners. But all of life's relationships, whether they mar or enrich our lives, depend upon the spirit in which we enter into them.

If Jesus came into the world to save sinners, he could not very well avoid meeting sinners and being friendly with them. It would have been as absurd to hope to save men from their sins and at the same time avoid mingling with sinners as for a man to go fishing with a fine array of fishing tackle but in a region where no fish could possibly be found.

If we were more like Jesus and had more real interest in our fellow men, we should be less particular about our companions and friends but very much more particular about ourselves and about the spirit and attitude which we display toward others.

Strong Shouldn't Fear Evil If a man is weak and easily influenced for wrong, he is wise to avoid the influence of evil companions. But if a man is godly, with the power of Christ upholding and sustaining him, he will wish to display toward his fellow men the grace of God in kindness of life, in gentleness of words, and in that love that wins men from their own ways of sin and selfishness.

Here in our lesson we find Jesus in contact with two sorts of sinners. The one was a very respectable sinner who did not think that he was a sinner at all. In fact, one of his zealous forms of sin was in believing that he was better than certain other people whom he despised.

Simon the Pharisee thought that character and reputation were the same thing. That was a very great mistake, and with it Simon made the other great mistake of imagining that sin was largely a matter of offense against conventional standards. It was inconceivable to Simon that a man might make a high profession of religion and be very earnest, and yet at the same time be a very great sinner through lack of love and kindly consideration for others.

Sinner Repented The other sinner was a woman who knew herself for such. There was no question about her standing in the community. She had evidently been guilty of gross sins that had shut her out from respectable society and that made her known in the city as a sinner woman. Yet in the soul of this woman was something that so responded to the Master's goodness and gentleness that she brought her tribute in the only way that seemed possible—the bringing of precious ointment and the washing and anointing of the Master's feet. The tears that poured forth told of her contrition, and the Master's word of approval marked the reality of her repentance.

BROTHERHOOD SUNDAY TOPIC OF REV. COLE

ORANGE, Feb. 14.—Services at the First Methodist church tomorrow morning will open with the prelude, "To Spring," by Gies. The anthems will be "Turn Thee Again, O Lord," by Sullivan, and "The Spirit In Our Hearts," by Shelley. The sermon is to be "The Great Brotherhood of Men" and is to be delivered by the pastor, the Rev. W. B. Cole.

In the evening the pastor will speak from the topic "The Modern Currents of Life," and the solo, "Going Home," by Dvork, is to be given by Carl Warner. The musical program is to include "When We Stand Before the King" by Nevin, and is to be sung by Mrs. Margaret Weakley, Mrs. Hughes, Frank Nusslein and John D. Campbell.

On Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. W. B. Cole, wife of the pastor, will give the first of a series of devotional services on "The Beatitudes," and the S. W. class will assist in the services and Miss Mae Kimball will give the solos. "Stewardship of Time and Talents" will be the subject of the sermon by the Rev. H. Frederick Sheerer at the Baptist church Sunday morning. There will be special music by the choir. "The Greatest Man That Ever Lived" will be the theme for the evening service, continuing the series of sermons on "Pictures of Jesus From John." A musical program will be given.

"Behold, God Is My Helper" by Adams, will be the anthem by the choir at the Christian church Sunday morning. The Rev. W. E. Spicer, pastor of the Christian church at Bell, will give the morning sermon. Mrs. Leon Des Larzes will sing. The Rev. F. M. McClure will give the sermon at the evening service. "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee," by Wilson, will be sung by the choir. Miss Josephine Durgan will give a solo entitled "The Shepherd of Galilee," by Mabel Sturgis.

Arrange Service For Buena Park Church Tomorrow

BUENA PARK, Feb. 14.—The Rev. Edward E. Gaylord, superintendent of the Southern California Congregational conference, will preach the sermon at the Sunday morning services at the Buena Park Congregational church.

The evening services will be in charge of the Rev. Ralph E. Doeschner, of Anaheim, who will preach on "The Unshaken Kingdom."

'Zero Hour' Topic For Dr. Tipple At Villa Park Church

VILLA PARK, Feb. 14.—The subject of Dr. W. M. Tipple Sunday will be "The Zero Hour." The music will be as follows: Prelude, "Song Without Words," by Kronke; anthem, "The Heavens Declare," by Wilson; and solo, "The Green Cathedral," by Hahn, sung by Miss Elizabeth Skiles; offertory, "Meditation," by Johnson, and the postlude, a march by Solly.

ORANGE PERSONALS

ORANGE, Feb. 14.—The card party of the third home economics section of the Women's club will be held on Friday. This will be the third and last party of the series held at the clubhouse.

G. A. Frerking, of U. S. C., is spending the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Frerking, 1412 East Chapman avenue. The male chorus of the First Christian church and members numbering 25 motored to the services at the Christian church at Bell yesterday evening. The Rev. Franklin H. Minick is conducting a two weeks revival service at that charge. The male chorus sang "I Will Go to Jesus" and "Steal Away," led by Mrs. Leon Des Larzes, choir director.

EL MODENA

EL MODENA, Feb. 14.—Mrs. C. J. Rohl has left for her home in New York after spending the past week in the R. W. Jones home.

Mrs. Charles Ralph attended the W. C. T. U. meeting held in the Christian church in Orange Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jones and little son, Robert, spent Wednesday in Walnut, where they were guests in the C. S. McMillan home. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Adams and daughter, Eva, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Settle, enjoyed a motor trip to Redlands and San Bernardino Tuesday. They also called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Settle's son Herschel Settle, and wife at Azusa.

Arthur Hodson, of San Diego, spent Wednesday in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hodson.

WAR HISTORY RECOUNTED IN ORANGE BOOK

ORANGE, Feb. 14.—A history of the Civil war told by documents issued by the government is the property of Mrs. John Shewalter, 175 North Orange street, and the documents were carefully placed in a scrap book by Mrs. Shewalter's grand uncle, Gen. H. Seymour Hall, who enlisted in the great struggle as a student and an ensign and was promoted to the rank of general before the close of the war.

One of the most interesting pages in the big book is a map of the fortifications near West Point, where General Hall was stationed. The map is done in pencil on an ordinary sheet of paper and the positions of the Southern army, the pickets and the fortifications are made in minute detail. Famous names appear on every page, as General Hall took part in many famous battles and was under General McClellan's command.

The general joined the 27th regiment of the New York volunteers in September, 1861, and his service extended until after the close of the war, when he was sent to Texas to help in reconstruction work in the south. Newspaper articles recount his activities in this line and tell graphically of the problems encountered in trying to bring the Negroes into normal condition. Many of them thought that the lands formerly owned by their masters were to be given to them.

General Hall lost his right arm in taking a rifle pit at Pittsburgh, and all hospital records were kept by him. He was made commander of the 43d regiment of Negro troops on his way up the ranks.

Telegrams in the book are in handwriting. The program of the second ball of G. A. R. post No.

MEMBERS OF U.S.A. CLUB ENTERTAINED

20-30 CLUB TO BE FORMED IN ORANGE FEB. 18

ORANGE, Feb. 14.—John Neely and Willet Winslow were appointed a committee to complete arrangements for the formation of a 20-30 club here at a preliminary meeting held last night at the American Legion hall. Twenty members were present from Upland and equal number was present from Anaheim with their secretary, Earl Jackson.

Sherman Gillogly acted as advisor for the local group. Another meeting is scheduled for next Wednesday evening at the Legion clubhouse at 6:30 o'clock, when it is expected that the formation of the club will be completed.

Dinner was served by members of the American Legion auxiliary, and a program was given, the group of Upland representatives singing several songs and Kenneth Pryor of KREG giving several selections and accompanying himself on his guitar.

night and Sunday at the Hanselman ranch near Sanguis. Miss Lillian Morrow and Miss Hazel Morrow sang a duet at the Evangelical church in Santa Ana Sunday evening. They were accompanied by Miss Evelyn Edwards.

Mrs. C. E. Bushman and son, Harold, spent several days this week at Ventura where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bushman. Miss Jean Tritt visited friends in San Diego Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Deck and Mr. and Mrs. Farrar of Santa Ana spent Sunday at Sawtelle visiting several friends in the Soldiers' home.

The Orange County Symphony orchestra meets for practice at the Conservatory of Music, 808 North Main street, Santa Ana, each Tuesday at 7:15 p. m. Mr. Clanton wishes all those who play an instrument to meet with them.

The Screech Owl

By Miss Carrie Jacobs

Of the 15 different kinds of owls found in this state the screech owl is the most often seen about here and it is the next to the smallest. The little saw-when owl is smaller and has no ear tufts like the screech owl.

No one can tell why but there are two colors of screech owls. Some of each color may be found in the same nest. They may be brown or gray but their coats are always mottled, that is, streaked and barred with black. The underparts are white with brown and black streaks and bars. The toes have a few feathers on them. The eyes are large and yellow. The feathers that make the ear tufts are about an inch long and stand straight up. Whether these help in the owl's hearing or not is not known, but the owl has peculiar ears. They are not just the small holes in the side of the head as most birds have, but large holes. It is likely that an owl hears a mouse before it sees it.

Screech owls do not make nests. They choose any hole in a tree and often are found in deserted flickers' holes. During the day they retire to these holes or find a place close to the trunk or a large limb of a tree. They stand straight and draw their tails close to the limb and are not easily seen from below.

When a bird finds an owl, especially the blue jay, the alarm is given and other birds come in numbers and annoy it, keeping up a chattering until they drive it away. The braver birds will peck at it and the others will encourage them by their calls.

The owl's working time begins when our day is done. They are on the night shift and never change. They seem dazed and sleepy during the day and their eyes are not opened widely until the dusk of the evening comes on. Then a bird is more wide awake. It is at night that we hear the trembling, wailing, but melodious call. This call saddens some people and even sends shivers up and down their backs. But there is no need for this. The bird nor its call can harm no one. Others who love all nature and nature's sounds listen to it with pleasure.

Girls and boys, while you are still happy young people, do not think as some older people do about the calls of the owl. They have heard the calls when their hearts were saddened by the world's troubles and the one brings to mind the other. They cannot help being saddened and thinking the mean trouble. Think of them as the calls of a sober, solemn bird going about its business of getting a living, and speaking to each other in words that they only can understand.

These owls are birds of prey. That means that they seize and devour the other animals for food. Owls do seize their food with their claws and if too large to swallow whole they tear it with their hooked beaks. The fur and bones are afterward thrown out in a little ball.

Their work is of such great value to farmers that it cannot be estimated. Hawks hunt during the day and owls during the night, and catch the small animals that feed upon and damage the farmer's crop. Owls work during the time that the farmer sleeps. Even when he is up and doing he cannot keep off these unnumbered enemies. God has provided a way, and we must not work against that way by killing, because the birds take a little of value at the same time that they take the other or because we do not understand their calls.

Many insects and small animals depend upon the darkness for safety and come out only at night or twilight. These would become so numerous that they could not be checked and would do untold damage if there were not certain birds that can see in the dark, and being partly blinded by light must wait until night to find their food.

Many insects fly during the dusk of evening and this is the reason swallows and swifts often fly late. After these have gone to rest the night hawk and whippoorwill come out and the bat flies and help lessen the swarm of insects. This is the time for these owls. They eat many beetles and insects of larger size, even cutworms that do their bad work at night. They also eat many mice, young rats, moles and other small animals.

We need not think that while we are sleeping at night all nature is asleep just because we hear so little noise. The owls are true night birds. The light dazzles them, but they can see clearly in twilight and dusk and moonlight nights. Their hearing is very sharp. Their wing feathers are very soft and they can move through the air without the noise that so many day-flying birds make. They can steal up to their prey and catch it without disturbing the quiet of the night. The woodcock is a night feeder too but it has not the soft wing feathers. It does not need them. It feeds by digging into the ground and not while on the wing. The fitness of things in nature is a great thing to think about. The wisdom of it all is beyond our thinking.

There are large and small owls. They look something like cats and we know that they act like them. The ear tufts look like cats' ears. The large eyes set far apart look alike. Both cats and owls can adjust their eyes to the light. The large head of the owl and the hooked beak help out the likeness. The song calls the owl wise. They do look wise. They sit up straight. Their big eyes stare at you. They must turn their heads to watch you if you walk around them for their eyeballs are fixed in their heads and do not turn or roll. If you come close enough to touch it, it will flop on its back and fight with beak and claws, and crack the parts of its beak together.

This owl has saved many a young orchard tree that would have been killed by the mice gnawing the bark. No one knows how many bushels less the wheat crop would have measured if this

INSTRUCTIONS FOR COLORING

As the owl hunts for food at night we will make this a night or evening picture using blue, gray, brown and a little yellow and black. The sky should be an even tint of bluish gray, getting lighter near the center of the picture and blending into a dark purple blue at the bottom. The dead tree trunk and limbs should be dark purplish gray with deep shadows of brown and black. The large owl perched on the limb should be warm gray and brown with light gray breast spotted with brown; the wings and head are warm gray with brown spots; the eyes are black and yellow; the beak is orange yellow.

The owl flying with the mouse in its claws has a reddish brown head, back, wings and tail; the under side of the wings are gray with a row of black feathers through the center the full length of the wing and which show on the back of the wing also; the mouse can be dark gray and brown.

owl had not chosen to make its home on the farm. Most large beetles fly at night and this owl catches hundreds of them. When young these beetles are grubs and many live on the roots of the grass in the hayfield. The farmer who gives this owl an invitation to live on his farm by protecting it is inviting a friend that will help choose to be his neighbors. ## NANCY CARROLL AT FOX BROADWAY SUNDAY

"Other Men's Women" Begins Run At West Coast

HOLMES STARS IN NEW 'STOLEN HEAVEN' FILM

People who believe in taking their entertainment seriously, who know that an hour and a half of enjoyment can also mean an hour and a half of real memory-creating, dispassionate observation, will find in "Stolen Heaven," Nancy Carroll's new dramatic sensation, which opens at the Fox Broadway Sunday, something really enjoyable, and, at the same time, worthwhile, in talking picture pleasure.

"Stolen Heaven" brings the winsome star of "The Devil's Holiday" and "Laughter" forward in still another characterization, as different from her two previous revealing portrayals as they were from each other.

Here, seen again with the handsome blond leading man of "The Devil's Holiday," Phillips Holmes, Miss Carroll plays the part of a discouraged and life-weary girl whose one good deed saves Holmes from the police. Holmes, as sick of life as she is, proposes that they spend the proceeds of a robbery he has committed in one last, gay fling at life, and then, together, seek death. They plunge madly into a feverish melee of gambling, dancing, dining, playing. The money is soon exhausted and nothing remains for Holmes but death. A millionaire playboy offers Nancy marriage. But Holmes and Nancy discover their love for each other, and love adds a new meaning to life, makes it something worth fighting for.

JOHN CROMWELL OFF ON OCEAN VACATION

John Cromwell, director, and his Paramount, and has been directing actress-wife, Kay Johnson, have left Ruth Chatterton in "Unfaithful."

IN RAILROAD THRILLER

Beautiful Mary Astor, star of "Other Men's Women" which comes to the Fox West Coast theater tomorrow for a two-day run. Others in the cast include Fred Kohler and Grant Withers. It is a Warner Bros. production.

CHATTERTON TO BE STARRED IN FOUR PICTURES

Plans for the production and release by Paramount of four pictures starring Ruth Chatterton are announced by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of the Paramount Public corporation, in making known the consummation of important negotiations for plays and story material for that star. Three of these four Ruth Chatterton pictures will be released during the new 1931-32 season, which starts August 1, Lasky stated.

The first of them will be "Daddy's Gone a-Hunting," from the stage play by Zoe Akins, author of "The Greeks Had a Word for It." This vehicle, staged on Broadway by Arthur Hopkins a few seasons ago, is the dramatic story of a domestic triangle in which Miss Chatterton will play the wife who rebels against her husband's philandering.

"Mother Love Role"

"The Heart Is Young," by May Edington, will afford Miss Chatterton a role that combines the qualities of "Sarah and Son" and "The Right to Love," as she finds a latent mother love and romance in the midst of a deep intrigue.

The third Chatterton vehicle just purchased will be "Stepdaughters of War," the Helen Zenna Smith story recently dramatized by J. Kenyon Nicholson and given production in New York, which has been called the only true story of a woman's part in the world war, and will be directed by Dorothy Arzner, herself a war veteran.

Latest Seen in March

In addition, "Unfaithful," the picture Miss Chatterton has just completed, is to be released to theaters late in March. Written by John Van Druten, author of "Young Woodley," this is a story of modern society and a woman who seeks for herself a bad reputation when she learns that her husband is disloyal to her.

Production of "Daddy's Gone a-Hunting" will be started on March 7, following Miss Chatterton's return from a New York vacation.

IN "REVIVAL"

Norma Shearer, who comes to the Fox West Coast theater tomorrow night in the theater's revival for the week, "The Divorcee" one of the big pictures of last year.

Hard Times Booster For Film Trade

The hard times of 1930 were the greatest boon that ever came to the motion picture industry.

This surprising declaration was made yesterday by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president and production head of the Paramount Public corporation.

"The public's response to talking pictures was so great and overwhelming," he said, "that I have not a doubt but that for a time the business was almost too easy, and producers were getting 'soft.' Then came the 1930 depression.

"Hard times were a challenge. The situation could not be met by simply spending more money; it could only be met by the use of more brains, more energy, more showmanship. This emergency brought to the front a new and brilliant personnel and, in addition, gave new life to the old personnel.

"Out of the 1930 turmoil came a confidence not born of prosperity and easy conditions, but a confidence born of achievement. We learned once again the truth of the old showman slogan: 'It's always a good season for good shows.' The industry learned once and for all that to coast with the season was to court disaster.

"The result is being reflected in the new productions now being released by the major companies."

RAILROAD FILM STARS WITHERS, ASTOR, KOHLER

"Other Men's Women," the Warner Bros. production which comes to the Fox West Coast theater Monday for a run of two days, is a tremendous story of elemental passion, brute strength, love, sacrifice and devotion.

Its background is a smoke-shrouded region of thundering trains, crumbling bridges and swirling waters, not to forget the rose-covered cottage where Jack, the engineer, lives happily with Lily, his pretty wife. Devoted to each other, they share affection for Bill, the fireman, drunken but likable, and in time taken into the home of the newlyweds as a boarder.

It is when the liking between Lily and Bill turns into love that the pastoral scene changes to one of dark complexity. Bill leaves the home and the engineer begins to mistrust him. Accusations of the husband as he and Bill start on a long run together results in Jack being hurled from the wrecked train and blinded.

Then follows the retribution of the fireman, who had been drawn into the affair inadvertently, and as guiltless as the wife whose days are now devoted to her afflicted husband. It is enough to say that there is no moment's halting in the swift course of the play, which is the most thrilling melodrama of the road ever filmed.

Grant Withers plays the fireman, whose presence in the home causes all the trouble. Mary Astor is the pretty and alluring young wife. Regis Toomey superbly portrays the engineer. James Cagney as a brakeman is convincing, so are Fred Kohler and Walter Long as railroad men. Jean Blondell, most delightful of comedienne, triumphs again as the flip waitress in a railroad restaurant. J. Farrell MacDonal is quaint and original as Pegleg, the curious and kindly neighbor. William Wellman, brilliant director whose war experiences were so marvelously crystallized in "Wings," as ably directs "Other Men's Women."

"Other Men's Women" is from an original story by Maude Fulton. The characteristic dialogue was done by William K. Wells. All the appeal of action-drama is combined with the polish of a super-feature in "Other Men's Women."

MANY EXTRAS USED IN "EAST LYNNE"

The filming of "East Lynne" by Fox Movietone made a big dent in the unemployment statistics of the extra players of Hollywood. Extras numbering 2718 were employed at various times by Director Frank Lloyd to appear in support of the all star cast, which includes Ann Harding, Clive Brook, Conrad Nagel, Cecilia Loftus, O. P. Heggie, David Torrence and Beryl Mercer.

The wedding scene of Lady Isobel and Carlyle required the services of 567 beautiful women and handsome men; a hunting ball sequence gave employment to about the same number of dress type extras; a Viennese scene required 472; Parisian scenes 1130; Franco-Prussian war scenes needed 1000 military types, 500 men and women to act as pedestrians and 100 children; the scenes of the bombardment of Paris required about 1000 extras.

NORMA SHEARER IN "DIVORCEE" AGAIN

Hollywood for a vacation trip to New York by way of the Panama Canal. They will spend several weeks in New York with friends and return to Hollywood to continue their screen work.

Cromwell is under contract to Paramount, and has been directing actress-wife, Kay Johnson, have left Ruth Chatterton in "Unfaithful."

JOHN CROMWELL OFF ON OCEAN VACATION

John Cromwell, director, and his Paramount, and has been directing actress-wife, Kay Johnson, have left Ruth Chatterton in "Unfaithful."

BROTHER FOLLOWS IN COOGAN'S WAKE

Robert Coogan, younger brother of Jackie Coogan, today starts his juvenile film career on even terms with his illustrious brother's cinematic debut.

At the age of five, which was Jackie's age when he first appeared as "The Kid" in pictures, Robert has been cast for the part of Sooky, pal of "Sippy," in Paramount's filmization of Percy Crosby's famous cartoons and novel.

His casting climaxed one of the most extensive searches for a player that has ever been waged in Hollywood. More than 500 boys of his age were interviewed and 200 of them tested for the Sooky role which rivaled the hunt for Sippy, which recently resulted in the signing of Jackie Cooper.

Will Rogers To Make Famous Old Laff Story

Nearly a generation ago Mark Twain saw a bullet hole in a suit of armor in a British museum, and that is one reason why Will Rogers will soon be doing his antics in "A Connecticut Yankee" on the Fox Movietone screen. Mr. Twain couldn't figure out how a knight in King Arthur's time could be shot before the invention of gun powder so he let his imagination run riot and "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" was the result.

In the new screen version Rogers doesn't shoot any holes in armor; he repes his knights. Some critics will call it an anachronism, but Fox officials insist it's a big laugh.

Jaysee High Jinks Is Lively Affair For Jaysee Coeds

Planned as a means of bringing the various Jaysee women's clubs and students into closer communion and fellowship, the first annual "high-jinks" planned by the Associated Women Students of the college last night scored a complete success when held in the auditorium and later in Andrews gymnasium.

As a fitting prelude to the entertainment skits, Miss Marian Parsons, president of the A. W. S. and whose efforts accounted for much of the success of the affair, was enthroned in a huge chair and presented with flowers from the college graduates, the girl athletes and the college society girls. Calling the judges, Mrs. D. K. Hammond, Mrs. Robert Northcross and Mrs. John Tammann, to the stage, Miss Parsons presented each with a corsage.

Staging the ever-popular minstrel show, the W. A. A. walked off with first honors, the silver cup on which the letters W. A. A. will be the first to be engraved. Fifteen members in blackface comprised the chorus, and gave a clever little dance, remaining on the stage while the old mammy was urged to dance. Following her dance a trio did the tap dance "Dixie" and then with her banjo and with the darkies grouped around her, Miss Agnes McKinstry sang several Negro songs.

Receiving second place and a five-pound box of candy the Sisterhood of Spinsters' "Family Album" was the most charming skit offered. The groups forming themselves behind a darkened screen and then appeared in a series of artistic tableaux. As the past picture, a snapshot of the Spinsters, they appeared in tan polo coats and berets and sang their club song.

Third place went to the Moava with the skit of "Old King Cole." Miss Maybelle Ball made a jolly king as she called for her bowl, her pipe and her fiddlers three. Her attendants gave a clever dance before they were dismissed. "Las Meninas" "Count Twenty's Revenge" as a pantomime was one of the cleverest skits given. Miss Miriam Samuelson as the hero and wearing armor of kettle, pans, egg beaters, drying racks, lids and other kitchen utensils, received the first prize in costumes. Miss Dulcie Green was given honorable mention for her costume which was of the colonial period.

"And the Lamp Went Out," the pantomime offered by the Y. W. C. A.; "The House That Jack Built" skit given by the French club in the French language, and a "chalk talk" by Miss Virginia Pope for the Alpha Rho Taus, all were extremely interesting.

Miss Marian Parsons had complete charge of the affair with the assistance of Miss Miriam Samuelson who arranged for the dance that followed the program in the gymnasium; the O. K. club in charge of refreshments served afterwards in the gymnasium, and the Shea Shell Social club members acted as ushers, and were to apply special medieval torture to any men appearing, as the affair was strictly feminine.

Legion Auxiliary Has Gratifying Success At Card Party

Any qualms as to Friday the Thirteenth were dispelled at the American Legion bridge party last evening when more than 100 devotees of the game gathered for an informal evening. Mrs. Dean Colver, president, and Mrs. Willard Swarthout and her committee acting as hostesses.

Hearts were in evidence, their bright red intermingling with gold in the table favors and the wrappings of the pretty and useful winners. Festoons of hearts hung from the balcony, and candy hearts were served during the refreshment course which consisted of ices in heart shapes and home-made cookies.

Mrs. George Kenneth Scovel scored high among the plovets and received a large potted cyclamen, as did Mrs. Larry Golden of the progressive group. Mrs. J. H. Bray and Mrs. Pearl Watson were consoled with smaller plants.

Among the men, Z. B. West and Larry Golden scored high and were given electric cigar lighters for their cars, and Ray Crum and Ben Lieberman received dust cloths for their cars.

PRETTY NEWLYWED

Mrs. Earl Barnett, formerly Miss Allene Fletcher of Bakersfield, is the pretty bride of Earl Barnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Barnett of Cypress. The young people were married recently in Bakersfield, but are now at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Barnett, although they plan to establish their home eventually in the northern city.

Husbands Are Guests At Ebell Section Bridge Party

Accrued by many as the most successful of the annual parties given by members of the Fourth Household Economics section of the Ebell society for their husbands, was the affair held last evening in the clubhouse. Mrs. Walter Hickey, Mrs. S. A. Jones and Mrs. Roy Langley were hostesses.

A perfect setting for the evening of bridge was found in the attractive bouquets of sweet peas, freesias and lilies which were used to decorate in accordance with the valentine motif. In the contest of the evening Mrs. George Richardson and T. F. Ham held high scores while Mrs. Clyde Bach and E. C. Erwin were consoled.

Late in the evening refreshments in keeping with the motif of the evening, were served. Assisting the hostesses at this time were Mrs. R. W. Bales and Mrs. Norbert Lentz. A short business meeting was held with the leader, Mrs. S. I. Preble, presiding. At this time she thanked members of the section for the success with which they served the banquet for the Y. W. C. A. business girls' conference last Saturday. It was voted to enlarge the Fourth Household Economics section.

Members of the section are anticipating their next meeting, Friday, March 13 when they will make an excursion to the Huntington library in San Marino. Mrs. James Tarpley is chairman of the committee in charge, and has asked that those planning to go make reservations with her as soon as possible.

Desert and Mountains Are Enjoyed on Motor Outing

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Diers, 1115 North Main street, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bach, of Chicago, who have been spending the winter months here, have just returned from an automobile trip to Palm Springs, the Coachella and Imperial valleys, and San Diego.

Their longest stay was made at Palm Springs where they found the desert and mountains unusually beautiful although the weather was rainy and colder than usual at this season. Through Banning and Beaumont, the Chicanos were especially enthusiastic over the panorama afforded by the blossoming almond trees, one of the most beautiful sights Southern California affords.

They visited friends in the Imperial valley before continuing on to San Diego, and thence home. Mr. and Mrs. Bach and the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pease of Orange, are planning to leave Tuesday for a few days' visit with relatives in Bakersfield. The Chicago visitors arrived before the holidays and will not return east until sometime in March.

Friday the Thirteenth Is Selected For Wedding Date

To Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sheldon, of Tustin, Friday, the thirteenth, will always be associated with joyousness, for they chose that date for their wedding, a charming event of last night, held in the Tustin Presbyterian church, with some half hundred relatives and friends assembled for the event. Mrs. Sheldon was Miss Louise Lange of Tustin.

Preceding the 8 o'clock ceremony was a musical interval, with Miss Carrie Seaton at the organ. An organ solo, "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond, was followed by songs by Charles Hill, whose numbers included "One Alone" from "The Desert Song" and "At Dawning" (Cadman). Following the ceremony, Mr. Hill sang "Until."

It was to the traditional strains of the Wedding March from Lohegrin that the wedding party entered the church, the lovely young bride on the arm of her father, George Lange, and attended by Miss Eula Barker, of San Diego, maid of honor; Miss Marion Smith, of Tustin, and Mrs. Hubert Riggan (Leta Harwell) of Fullerton. Mr. Sheldon was assisted by Charles Hill as best man, while Dwight Meyers and Hubert Riggan were ushers.

The altar was a study in green and white with palms and ferns used in profusion, starred with snowy lilies and jonquils. The Rev. S. F. Shifflet, pastor of the church, conducted the rites to the accompaniment of muted organ numbers.

Miss Lange's blonde charm was heightened by her modish wedding gown of white flat crepe worn with flowing tulle veil confined to her hair with a chaplet of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, and she carried a cluster of white sweet peas and hyacinths in formal arrangement.

Miss Barker's gown was of pale green silk with touches of orchid in harmony with the orchid sweet peas which she carried. Miss Smith wore shell pink organdy and carried sweet peas in the same tone, while Mrs. Riggan, wearing primrose yellow organdy, carried pink and orchid sweet peas. Mrs. Lange, mother of the bride, was dressed in eggshell crepe and wore a corsage of pink sweet peas.

Original plans for a reception following the ceremony were abandoned because of the recent illness of the bride, and even the honeymoon was deferred until a later date and the new Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon will remain with the bride's parents until she is fully recovered. Later they will make their home in an attractive place on Halesworth street in this city.

Mr. Sheldon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sheldon of Oklahoma City, Okla., and graduated from the high schools of that city. He is connected with the Brock Glass company of Santa Ana. His bride graduated from Tustin union high school and Santa Ana junior college, following her college work here with studies at State Teachers' college, San Diego.

Since announcement was made of her engagement and the chosen wedding date she has been honored at various delightful affairs. Miss Hazel Elton of Tustin, Mrs. Hubert Riggan of Fullerton, and Miss Marion Smith of Tustin, having been among those complimenting her.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included, in addition to Miss Eula Barker of San Diego, and Mr. and Mrs. Riggan of Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. John Tate of Whittier, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green of Fullerton.

College French Club Holds Snow Party

Tobogganing, snowballing and other snow sports were being enjoyed today by members of the Santa Ana junior college French club, who motored to the Los Angeles playground early this morning.

The excursion was under the supervision of Miss Lella Watson, French instructor at the college and advisor of the club. A feature of the trip was the fact that during the fun and snow sports, French conversation was to be used. It was also planned to play several French games.

A picnic dinner served at noon was in charge of Miss Evelyn Parks, president and Miss Velma Bishop, secretary of the organization. Those who made the trip included the Misses Evelyn Parks, Velma Bishop, Marie Moog, Helen Norton, Lella Watson, advisor and Julien Lecrivain, Laurence Hauptert and John "Ski" Dunlap.

Sewing Club Meets With Mrs. Martin

Stitch and Chatter members were guests of Mrs. Alice Martin Thursday afternoon when she entertained in her home on North Ross street. The hours were devoted to the club pursuits of needle work and were concluded when Mrs. Martin served a dainty refreshment course.

Those present, other than Mrs. Martin were Mesdames Josie Antisdell, Harry Blackburn, Ralph Crane, Harold Dawson, R. Earl Elliott, Walter Ozmert, Mary Isabelle Rogers and William Adamson.

SORORITY GIRL ANNOUNCES BETROTHAL TO BERKELEY MAN

Miss Maria Mitchell, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Mitchell, 716 East Fifth street and a senior at Berkeley, recently announced to her sisters in Kappa Delta sorority, the pleasant news of her betrothal to James Edward Gosline, also a University of California student. Miss Mitchell graduated from Santa Ana high school before entering Berkeley. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gosline of Santa Paula, and is studying for his doctor's degree after having graduated last spring from the College of Mining, Berkeley. He is pledged to Theta Tau, national mining professional fraternity.

Hostess Decorates Home With Tulips For Card Party

Using brilliant red tulips to decorate the rooms of her home, Mrs. R. C. Edwards was hostess to members of her bridge club Thursday afternoon when she entertained in her home at 2139 Greenleaf street. A delectable dessert course was served to precede the card games of the afternoon, and when scores were added it was found that Mrs. Don Mozley held high score.

Those sharing Mrs. Edwards' hospitality were Mrs. George Lackaye, a special guest, and Mesdames Herbert Allemen, James Lewis, Clarence Laxton, Don Mozley, Jesse Elliott and D. E. Liggett.

Ebell Leaders Meet to Organize Section In Public Speaking

Organization of an Ebell section in public speaking was effected Wednesday morning when leaders held their usual monthly meeting in the clubhouse. With Mrs. M. M. Holmes presiding, plans were made, and it was decided that membership of the section will be limited to 25.

Mrs. Holmes introduced Mrs. H. G. Gardner who acted as toastmistress. After a brief talk she presented Mrs. Holmes Bishop who discussed "Music Versus Entertainment." After other short talks Mrs. John Clarkson presided. At a meeting to be held March 11, further organization of the section will be made.

Ebell leaders present were Mesdames Holmes, Bishop, Elmer Burns, W. C. Risk, Herbert Kruehling, Clyde Jenken, M. M. Holmes and Ralph Smalley. Others present were Mesdames J. E. Paul, J. C. Hamill, H. G. Gardner, L. G. Hewitt, E. A. Bell, C. J. Klatt, W. S. Rose, H. W. Guthrie, G. M. Bacom, Claude Oewiller and Charles Swanner.

Jaysee Sports Event To Be Followed By Dance

An informal sport dance has been arranged by the Santa Ana junior college Press club to follow the basketball game between Santa Ana and Los Angeles junior colleges tonight in Andrews gymnasium. The dance will start at 9:30 and a small sum will be charged for admission.

Everett Idler's popular orchestra has been secured for the occasion. Students from the Los Angeles and the local college will be invited and the proceeds will go to the executive board. Paul Wright, Lauren Griggs and Robert Deupree have been appointed by John "Ski" Dunlap, president of the club, to take charge of the dance.

It was decided that if the dance is successful another will be held next Saturday night to follow the game between Santa Ana and Fullerton junior colleges in the local gymnasium.

Anniversary Dinner Given By Daughter Of Celebrants

An especially interesting affair was staged Thursday night at McFarland's cafe in Fullerton when Miss Clarice Mitchell invited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Mitchell, 310 South Sycamore street, to be her guests at dinner in observance of their forty-fourth wedding anniversary. Arriving at the popular cafe, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell were surprised to find a group of close friends awaiting them to share in the happy event which had been so successfully planned by their daughter.

A charming yellow color scheme was used in all of the table appointments, with jonquils and sweet peas in the chosen color centering the table, while tapers and nut baskets were also in tones of yellow. A pretty feature of the last course of the delicious five-course chicken dinner was a large cake iced in white, adorned with yellow flowers, and "Forty-fourth Wedding Anniversary" written in yellow across the top.

The honor guests were presented flowers and silverware by their friends while the hostess gave them a lovely silver tea service. All of the gifts were attractively wrapped in yellow. Bridge was enjoyed during the evening, with prizes for high and second high scores awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lindner and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Liske.

Harmony Bridge Club Has Valentine Party

Meeting at Kilpatrick's bakery yesterday, members of the Harmony Bridge club were guests at a most charming luncheon. Tables were spread with Valentine cloths and napkins, and adding to the attractive motif were red nut cups and bouquets of sweet peas in the same brilliant hue.

In the card games of the afternoon Mrs. James P. Austin held high score. For this she was presented with two gifts, one from the club, and the other, a large cake, from the bakery. Mrs. J. W. Dean held second high honors and Mrs. Jack Willey was consoled.

Those present were Mesdames R. A. Kloess, Jack Willey, Al. Adrian, Walter Wright, George Shippe, J. W. Dean, Elton Roehm, Sam Jernigan, J. P. Austin, B. E. Dawson, Hugh Parks, Hugh Henry, Charles Ryan, C. T. Cleland, R. V. Cox, Larry Golden, Thomas Overton, E. L. Heiss, A. W. Getchell, Harvey Dimmitt, C. E. Morse, Augusta Wisenman, Nellie Young, Maude Swarthout and two special guests, Mrs. Lee Boyle and Mrs. Mary Taylor.

Valentine Surprise Is Planned to Honor Miss Hunter

Complimenting Miss Hawthorne Hunter who, on April 29, will become the bride of Woody Barnett, was a delightfully planned valentine bridge party and shower given Wednesday evening by Mrs. G. F. Ludlow and her daughter, Miss Beryl Ludlow, in their home at 1029 West Third street.

Miss Hunter had been invited to spend the night with Miss Ludlow and was unaware that there was to be a party, so when she reached the home to find the guests assembled and every thing pointing to a gala affair, her surprise was a complete but happy one. Flowers and other decorations stressed the season of romance and flying cupids and talleis distributed for bridge were in harmony in color and design.

In the exciting contest, Miss Allison Buck scored high. Mrs. Morey Read second and Miss Lois Waldron low. Each received an attractive gift. Following the prize awards, card tables were arranged with pretty linens and valentine appointments for serving the delectable refreshments planned by the hostesses.

The climax of the evening came when Miss Hunter was invited into an adjoining room to find a table overflowing with daintily wrapped packages, which contained miscellaneous gifts for use in her future home.

Sharing the pleasant affair with Mrs. Ludlow, Miss Hunter and their honor guest, Miss Hunter, were Mrs. T. S. Hunter, mother of the honoree; Mrs. Morey Read, the Misses Alice Hanson, Dorothy Obarr, Mary Read, Dorothy Kloess, Margaret Putnam, Allen Buck, Evelyn Marshall, Irene Hein, Virginia Golden, Lois Waldron, Inez Chambliss and Helen Demetrious of this city; Miss Sallie Coe of Orange; Miss Margaret Phoenix of Long Beach; Miss Harriett Freeman and Miss Virginia Herschler, of Fullerton, and Miss Evelyn Parks of Garden Grove.

Patriotic Anniversary Brings Little Lad's Birthday Party

Master Ronald Frederick Hein, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hein of Newhope road, has the honor of sharing Lincoln's birthday as an anniversary date, and was two years old on Thursday, so was privileged to be a birthday host to his playmates and their mothers.

It was a happy afternoon party in which the children showered the little lad with many pretty gifts which he enjoyed opening. There were games and romps, and best of all was the refreshment hour when ice cream, animal and heart cookies, and birthday cake were served, with hot coffee added to the menu for the grown-up guests.

The cake with its two birthday candles, formed the centerpiece of the pretty table, where patriotic place cards and favors were used, with saucy red caps for each child. Mrs. Hein was assisted in serving by her mother, Mrs. A. C. Bowers and by Mrs. Walter Dunagan.

Those sharing the happy occasion with Master Ronald Frederick and his mother, were the little lad's aunt, Mrs. T. B. Sawyer of Los Angeles, and his two grandmothers, Mrs. Bowers and Mrs. E. L. Hein; Mrs. John Kinyon and daughter, Dorothy Lou; Mrs. Marcus Lassiter and son, Marcus Jr.; Mrs. Russell Caldwell and son, Ronald; and Mrs. Waldo Smith and daughter Sharon, Santa Ana; Mrs. Cecil Marks and son, John Sharpless Marks, La Habra; Mrs. Gale Harmon and son Eugene, Whittier; Mrs. Helen Breaux and son Freddie Joe, Mrs. Dwight Clapp and son, Jack Kenneth, and Mrs. Lester Lewis and daughter Barbara, Huntington Beach; Mrs. Allen Young and daughters, Robbie and Jackie, Midevale City; Mrs. Ben Hein and sons, James and Donald, Mrs. Wesley Hein and son, John Wesley, and Mrs. Theodore Paine and daughter, Theodora Louise, Anaheim; Mrs. Walter Dunagan and daughter, Muriel, Garden Grove.

S. O. A. Club Members Share Valentine Luncheon

In greeting members of the S. O. A. club as luncheon guests in her home at 1103 Kilson drive, Mrs. D. H. Thompson provided an especially pleasant hospitality centered on the valentine theme. Flaming red sweet peas graced the table in the dining room where the inviting menu was served, while candles tied with tulle bows, ornamental nut cups and place cards, all harmonized with the theme.

Tally cards for the bridge contest, continued the motif, and their results showed that Mrs. George Merriman held high score. Mrs. Leland Eubank, second, and Mrs. B. H. Bauman, low. Each received a suitable reward.

Those enjoying the afternoon with Mrs. Thompson were Mesdames S. A. Sissons, B. H. Bauman, Anaheim; William Batt, George Merriman, S. M. Higgins, Orange; Daisy McGee and Leland Eubank, Santa Ana.

ANAHEIM BRIDE

Mrs. Joseph Huarte, of Anaheim, was, prior to her marriage on Tuesday February 3, Miss Dorothy Eickholt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Eickholt of the neighboring city, and one of the most popular girls in the city. She was an unusually lovely bride in formal gown of ivory satin and with her embroidered net veil caught with orange blossoms. The young people are now in Shreveport, La., where Mr. Huarte, a professional baseball player, is in training with the Texas league.

Mortgage Is Burned At W. C. T. U. Home For Women

Accorded the privilege of burning the mortgage on the W. C. T. U. Home for Women, because of his munificent gift of $15,000 to the home, N. H. Leonard of 620 North Ross street, was honor guest at the impressive ceremonies held Tuesday at the home in Eagle Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. Edith Minter, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Richardson and son Kenneth, all of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Claude F. Minter and daughter Ernestine of Orange, and Miss Thora Thompson of Sanjour, were among those witnessing the special service. Mr. Leonard was one of the most generous donors to the building fund of the home, his gift of $15,000 being one of two of that sum, the other contributed by a woman in Whittier who was unable to be present for the ceremony.

Interesting talks by officers in charge of the home, were made during the afternoon. There are 103 women over 65 years of age in the home, one of them being 101 years old, Mrs. Ida Osborn, formerly of Santa Ana, who is one of the residents, was visited by the Santa Ana and Orange guests while they were there Tuesday.

Coreopsis Club Holds Pleasant Meeting

A delightful afternoon was enjoyed by members of the Coreopsis club Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Walter Meyers, Lyon street, Santa Ana. Bouquets of jonquils were used in decoration and bunco was played. Mrs. W. F. O'Hara and Mrs. Jennie Beckman were awarded prizes for first and second high scores.

Concluding her hospitality, Mrs. Meyers, assisted by Mrs. M. Bunker, served sandwiches, cookies, lemon pie and coffee. Those present, other than Mrs. Meyers and Mrs. Bunker, were Mesdames A. A. Alderman, E. E. Smith, Jennie Beckman, D. M. Forney, F. W. Silver and Miss Ethel Alderman.

Mrs. Smith Welcomes Amber Circle Group To Her Home

Amber Circle members held a delightful luncheon Thursday afternoon when they were guests of Mrs. H. MacVicker Smith in her home at 2048 Greenleaf street. Decorations carried out a patriotic motif in honor of Lincoln's birthday, and especially attractive were the bouquets of red, white and blue sweet peas and hyacinths which decked the home and the luncheon tables.

Following a short business meeting, with Mrs. J. W. Hancock presiding, members turned their attention to amusement features, some playing bridge and others producing their needlework. Among the card players, Mrs. Hutton scored high and received the pretty prize, while a similar gift was awarded Mrs. M. C. Hoyt among the needleworkers.

A special guest of the day was Mrs. W. F. Palmer of Honolulu, who is spending the winter with relatives in the Southland.

The hostess committee for the luncheon and party, included in addition to Mrs. Smith, Mrs. R. O. Grover, Mrs. L. B. Klenz, Mrs. George Hutton, Mrs. Anna James, Mrs. George Goodwin, Mrs. Willis E. Hennion, Mrs. Frances Brooks and Mrs. Annie Gale.

Guests Are Invited To Share Musical Evening

A musical program was the pleasant entertainment offered by Mr. and Mrs. Burritt Griley when they welcomed a group of friends to their home at 2053 Cedar street, on Thursday evening. The artists who contributed the program were R. N. McCarty, Santa Ana violinist, and a niece and nephew of the hosts, Mrs. Edith Troxel, pianist, and Fred L. Ramsdell, of Sparta, Wis., violinist.

Varying the violin and piano numbers were several cello and drum selections, the five being of special interest as it was a relic of Civil war days. Especially interesting was the singing of a song, "I Am Waiting for You," by its author, Mrs. Mary Ramsdell, and the music for which was composed by her son, Fred L. Ramsdell. The latter played the violin-obligato for the song, with his sister, Mrs. Troxel, as accompanist.

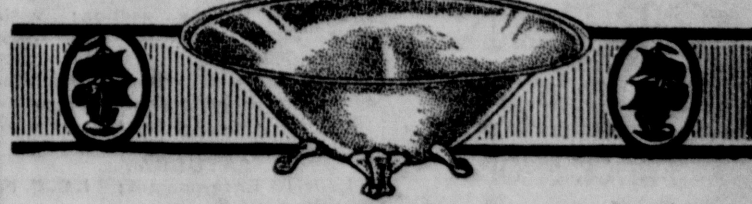

The evening's hospitality concluded with the serving of refreshments when Mrs. Griley was assisted by her sister and niece, Mrs. Edna Flora and Miss Dorothy Gowdy.

Sharing the happy affair with the hosts, were Mr. Ramsdell of Sparta, who has been spending the winter with his mother, Mrs. Mary Ramsdell of this city; Mrs. Mary Ramsdell, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. McCarty, Mrs. Edith Troxel, Mr. and Mrs. Max Gowdy, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gowdy and son and daughter, Don and Dorothy; Mrs. Edna Flora, Miss Mary Flora, Mrs. Frank Gowdy, Mrs. Frances Gowdy, Mrs. Roy Gowdy, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Spawen, all of Santa Ana.

Dessert Bridge Club Holds Meeting

Members of a little desert bridge club held an enjoyable meeting Thursday afternoon when they were guests of Mrs. C. J. Fenske in her home at 601 South Parton street. The appetizing course was served at the small tables decked with red and white peas.

In the bridge games of the afternoon Mrs. Ben Lieberman and Mrs. M. J. Logue held first and second high scores. Those present, other than Mrs. Fenske were Mesdames Ben Lieberman, M. J. Logue, R. Langenbeck, Robert J. Hartley and E. E. Mann, of this city; Mrs. C. M. Krogh of Lincoln, Neb., and Miss Helen Richards of Detroit, Mich.

Bowls of PEWTER

Master craftsmen fashion many beautiful reproductions of the old ancestral Pewter, which crossed the seas in our early history.

Unlike the old Pewter so prized as a heritage in many homes, Modern Pewter is inexpensive, contains no lead, and holds its luster longer than silver.

Let us show you the newest designs in Pewter Tea and Coffee Service.

Karekiller's Meet For Bridge Games

An afternoon of bridge was shared by members of the Karekiller's club who Thursday were guests of Mrs. Blanche Chandler in her home on East Washington street. Bouquets of early spring flowers in shades of red were used to adorn the rooms. High score at cards was held by Mrs. Nellie Young and low by Mrs. Ada Spencer. The hostess served delectable refreshments.

Special guests were Mrs. Janice Turner and Mrs. Ethel Brown. Members present, other than Mrs. Chandler were Mesdames Leota Allen, Mattie Bower, Edna Kline, Ella Mitchell, Veda Panky, Eleanor Pickel, Maude Swarthout, Ada Spencer and Nellie Young.

Iowa Residents Spend Day In Santa Ana

A little group of Iowa residents who are spending the winter in Long Beach were in Santa Ana yesterday as the guests of Mrs. Ella Bridenstine in her home at 818 Halladay street. The hostess served a tempting luncheon and used bouquets of sweet peas for decorations.

The remainder of the day was spent socially and in enjoying games and contests.

Those present, other than Mrs. Bridenstine were Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Chamberlain and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lentz and son, Willard, of North Liberty, Ia., and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Shields of Iowa City.

U. D. C.

Mrs. Isabel Tucker was hostess to Emma Sanson chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Thursday afternoon when she entertained in her home at 629 French street. Associate hostesses were Mrs. Kate Bradford, Mrs. Lola Schropshire, Mrs. Ray Steadman, Mrs. Laura Looney and Mrs. George Wells.

A cheerful, blazing fire and bouquets of bright-hued flowers contributed an attractive setting for the affair. During the business meeting it was voted to raise money for a scholarship to John Brown's school in Arkansas. This will be used to educate some worthy boy or girl. Mrs. Alice Turner donated a sum for the scholarship, and announced that as John Brown is visiting in California, she will be willing to pay his expenses to this city so that he may give a talk on his school to members of the chapter.

The day's program included a brief sketch of Gen. John B. Gordon. Mrs. B. E. Tarver read Sidney Lanier's poem, "Corn." Concluding the interesting meeting, light refreshments in keeping with Washington's birthday and Valentine's day were served. Mrs. T. L. Hill will entertain the chapter at the next meeting.

Job's Daughters

Complimenting their grand guardian, Mrs. Stella Jensen, members of Santa Ana branch of Job's Daughters staged an enjoyable dinner party Thursday evening in advance of their chapter meeting in Getty hall. Each member contributed a special dish to the menu which was served to the accompaniment of colorful table decorations.

The visit of the distinguished guardian attracted other guests to the dinner and chapter meeting, including queens and guardians of Anaheim, Fullerton and Orange chapters, until there were about 60. Daughters present to share the evening.

Miss Elizabeth Smith, queen, presided over the stated meeting, which featured initiation of two new members, Miss Carol Cogan, and Miss Gwen Griffin. Plans were made for a rush party on the evening of February 26, for prospective members. This will be a "kid party" with Daughters

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Annual Banquet

Sixty men and boys were present in the basement of the Reformed Presbyterian church recently when the annual Father and Son banquet was held. Those planning the dinner and the program which included were J. H. Anderson, John T. Curry, J. Addison Dodds and J. Gordon Betts.

After a few words of welcome by the Rev. Samuel Edgar, pastor of the church, Mr. Dodds greeted the fathers and Ralph Greer the boys. Ralph followed with two violin solos. Mr. Curry introduced the speaker of the evening, the Rev. D. Calderwood, M. A., of the Covenant church in Los Angeles. Experiences in the life of Abraham Lincoln were told. The speaker stressed the importance of temperance, loyalty and unity.

Group singing was enjoyed with Faris Edgar leading and Mrs. G. N. Greer assisting at the piano.

Thank Offering

The annual thank-offering meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the United Brethren church was held in all day session at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Pryatt, 1908 Spurgeon street.

The president, Mrs. W. O. Sidman, called the meeting to order for a business session at 11 a. m., at which time several plans were discussed, among which was to ask Mrs. Ritter, principal of the Artesia school, to give an evening program some time soon and show her pictures that she took while on her recent trip to Mexico and it is hoped that she may be able to bring some of the Artesia pupils to help her with the entertainment. A silver offering will be taken at this entertainment, half of which will be given to Mrs. Ritter to help her with her penny lunch proposition and the other remain in the society to help with the project they have on hand at present to help pay the salary of a very efficient foreign missionary who is in need of help.

It was decided to put the "Evangeli," the Missionary publication of the denomination, in the public library.

The world "Day of Prayer" service which will be held Friday, February 20, in Spurgeon Memorial church, was emphasized and all members were urged to attend. This weekly cottage prayer meeting which the United Brethren people have been holding each Friday morning, is to be held in the church on the 20th, with the W. M. A. in charge.

Mrs. Morgan read a very interesting letter from C. C. Witmer, missionary to the Philippines in which he told of their work, successes, problems and needs. The Rev. and Mrs. Witmer spoke in the local church while in the states on their furlough and local people are much interested in their work.

At noon a delicious covered dish luncheon was served cafeteria style. At 1 o'clock the program was given in charge of Mrs. C. H. Gilbert. Mrs. H. B. Spayd gave a beautiful interpretation of the 103rd Psalm. A sheaf of letters, supposedly from women in different walks of life, was read by several members and all told of the use of the thank-offering box and the blessing it had been to the writers.

A playlet, "The Measure of Thanks," followed and which revealed the gratitude of those in the hearts of the Christians among the foreigners and among the very poor. At the close of the playlet Mrs. Ed. Roman sang "Take My Life" while members of the society brought their thank-offerings to the table in an impressive service.

At the close of the afternoon the hostess and her sister served angel food cake and an iced fruit drink. Following is the list of those privileged to attend the meeting: The Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Spayd, Mesdames Della Hale, W. O. Sidman, L. C. Morgan, S. A. Klester, Sam. L. Harlow, Hattie Ellis, G. W. Spencer, F. J. Easter, Robert Emerson and daughter, Roberta; R. W. McGee and son, Harold; R. W. Harlow, G. E. Roman, G. W. Jamison, O. C. Dennie, H. A. Colby, William Lees, C. H. Gilbert, Percy Gammell, Mary E. Hoover, Percy Wiles and the host and hostess, with their two daughters, Evangeline and Marjorie.

Valentine Tea
The Women's council of the Orange Avenue Christian church held a Valentine social yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Frank Cannon was hostess in her home at 615 South Birch street. During the business meeting, mite boxes were turned in.

A delightful program was given, and included two piano solos by Miss Nellie Nichols. Mrs. C. A. Brownlow gave a reading, and the Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Martin followed with a duet, "In the Garden." Mrs. T. Vance read a poem, "On the Sunny Side of 70," dedicated to her husband, Mrs. H. A. Gerard gave a reading, Games and a social party were enjoyed, and late in the afternoon refreshments were served.

Those present were Mesdames T. Vance, E. E. Nichols, H. O. Gerard, Charles Hoff, Kenneth Martin, C. A. Brownink, H. L. Schlink, D. Cannon, Bruce Switzer, Charles Aubrey, James Smith, Powers, Mrs. Bosworth of Riverside; the Rev.

Bridge Club Members Have Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Turner held a lovely dinner party in their home at 2141 Greenleaf street last evening when they were hosts to members of their bridge club. The appetizing repast was served at the small tables bearing tall red tapers and favors evidencing the Valentine motif.

Interesting Guests Entertained Here

Mrs. Carrie Watson, 1011 Spurgeon street, has as house-guests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watson of Toronto, Canada, who are enjoying their first visit in California, finding it a novel change from the snowy scenes of their northern home. Their hostess is arranging a succession of automobile trips to various points in the Southland for their entertainment.

Mrs. Watson is anticipating the arrival early next week of her nephew, Paul Blanshard, author and lecturer of New York City, who is scheduled to address the Santa Ana Junior college assembly Tuesday morning in the high school auditorium where the annual Y. day will be celebrated. Paul Blanshard is director of the city affairs committee of New York, and special lecturer for the League of Industrial Democracy.

Little Group Enjoys Bridge Luncheon

One table of bridge was in session yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Parke Ash was hostess to club members entertaining in her home at 622 South Main street. Sweet peas and freshies decked the table where luncheon was served as a preliminary to the card contest.

As a result of the card games of the day Mrs. A. J. Swafford and Mrs. H. O. Garlock held high and low scores. Others present, other than the hostess were Mrs. Jack Abbott and Mrs. C. J. Peurrung.

PARENT-TEACHERS

An entertaining program was provided for those who attended the meeting of the John Muir P-T. A. this past week when Founder's day was observed in the kindergarten room of the school. The meeting opened with the flag salute and singing of "America the Beautiful."

The business meeting preceding the program of the day, the first number of which was a piano solo by Anita Hall. June Tway gave a dance. Taletta Dahl, Tony Loba and Kenneth Aiken, members of the school orchestra, played two selections, directed by Miss Gould. Talks on the Founder's National organization were given by Mrs. Gerren and Mrs. Rash. Mrs. Walter Hickey, president of the P-T. A., gave a history of the John Muir association, after which the candles on the birthday cake were lighted. Mrs. Westcott, Mrs. Arthurem, Mrs. Dahl and Mrs. Reuter gave short talks. The meeting was concluded when refreshments were served by mothers of third grade students. The third grade won the picture for February for having the most mothers present at the meetings.

Tustin

Nearly 40 were present to enjoy the Founders' day program presented by the grammar school P-T. A. in the kindergarten room Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Mary B. Robertson, fourth district president, outlined the work accomplished by the P-T. A. since its formation 33 years ago.

With much ceremony, the four candles on a large white birthday cake decorated with blue and gold trimmings were lighted by three past presidents, Mrs. D. D. Field, Mrs. Charles E. Bowman and Mrs. A. ## Efficiency Club Will Be Entertained

Members of the Efficiency Club of the Southern Counties' Gas company, are anticipating an event of the coming week, when they will be entertained at the annual dinner party given by officials of the Industrial Fuel and Supply company of Anaheim.

Invitations were issued recently by S. W. Todd, general superintendent of the company, of which Leroy M. Edwards is president. The party will be held Thursday night, February 19, in Anaheim Elks club, 423 North Los Angeles street, with dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

Making Citron Tender
I am answering a question from a reader through the column because other women may have had the same difficulty. This question had to do with candying citron for using in fruitcake, and the reader said she had followed directions to the dot, yet some of her citron persisted in being tough and woody, not the rich, tender product it must be to be usable.

She came to the conclusion that it was because the citron was extra large and the fibers tougher than the smaller citron. That was probably the reason, but still I see no reason why even the largest citron cannot be candied successfully.

It resolves itself down to cooking the citron so that the tough fibre, or cellulose, will be softened before the candying process.

Prepare the citron and parboil it, transfer to a steamer, cover the steamer with a towel, then steam the citron until it looks waxy and opaque clear through. Make a heavy syrup, cook the steamed citron in it for 15 minutes, take from the fire and cool the citron in the syrup overnight, next day, re-heat the syrup, pour it over the citron, and so on each day, until the citron is well soaked with sugar, then let it cook until the syrup gets very thick. Cool on a wire rack and store in a tin box between waxed paper.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Veal Pot Roast
5 pounds veal shoulder
1/2 pound beef suet
1 onion, diced fine
Bacon fat to fry onion
1 large cup fine bread crumbs
Sage, salt and pepper
1 egg, beaten
Garlic and celery salt for seasoning veal roast.

Slice the suet and set it to fry out in the potroast kettle while you prepare the stuffing for the roast.

Have the butcher bone the veal shoulder when you buy it but do not have it rolled. He should be asked to put in a couple of skewers to use after the pocket is stuffed. Don't forget to have him put in the bone too. It adds flavor and nourishment to the gravy.

Saute the minced onion in the bacon fat until it is a deep yellow. Take from the fire, stir in the crumbs, seasoning and bind it with the beaten egg. Press into the pocket and sew up the shoulder with stout thread and skewer into shape. Rub it all over with flour mixed with a little dry mustard, salt and pepper, and brown on all sides in the hot fat.

Dice the clove of garlic and add together with 2 cups of water, parsley and a little kitchen bouquet. Cover and simmer until tender—about 3 hours.

This roast is exceedingly good served hot, as well as cold, with a good crisp salad.

The calories total 3225 for this roast, but it serves equal to ten persons so that isn't so bad considering that veal is looked upon as a non-fattening protein.

ANTON ARENSKY

BY RUTH ANDREWS

Part I
Although the flickering and flicker light of popular favor has caused the fame of Anton Arensky's musical genius to glow with a somewhat lessening lustre during the past score of years, yet the lavish praise accorded him during his recent life time maintains for him a place among the more important of Russian modernist composers.

Destiny sometimes has a way of dealing out immortality to those who, during life, white to those seeming sons of fortune, who for a time enjoyed the favor of the throng, she eventually meets out oblivion with an indifferent hand. Only time can tell whether Arensky will be consigned to the fate of this latter class.

Akin in some respects to his more gifted brother, and countryman, Peter Tchaikovsky, Arensky undoubtedly suffers by comparison with this Slavic genius of orchestration. However, his brief life was one of so much activity and endeavor and honor walked hand-in-hand with him throughout such a varied and enviable career that he is well worthy of our consideration.

Born at Nijni-Novgorod, July 31, 1861, young Anton was especially fortunate in his selection of parents. His father, a physician of considerable prestige, was also a cellist of talent, while his mother was a cultured pianist.

Anton's childhood was thus spent in an atmosphere especially favorable for the unfolding of latent musical ability, and at an early age he gave every evidence of a feeling for music. His parents encouraged his development in every way, and his first training was received under Zikhe at a school of music conducted by Rosseau in St. Petersburg.

By the time he was 18, Arensky was ready for the intensive training in the musical career he had now decided to follow. He embarked on a three-year period of study at the famous old St. Petersburg conservatory, where he profited by the personal instruction of the noted Rimsky-Korsakoff, so many of whose pupils later followed in the footsteps of their illustrious teacher. Arensky made some progress, especially in the pursuit of musical composition, that at 21 he won a gold medal awarded by the conservatory. Shortly after this honor, he was fortunate in winning a public hearing for his first symphony and a piano concerto, as well, both of which were immediately acclaimed by musical circles of Moscow and St. Petersburg.

Thus at 21, on the threshold of his active career, Arensky found himself basking in the favor of public enthusiasm. Fortune continued to smile upon him. The same eventful year, despite his youth, he was again honored by receiving an appointment as professor of harmony and counterpoint at the conservatory of Moscow.

Arensky remained in this post for some length of time, and while serving in this capacity, numbered among his many pupils one who is today one of the most famous pianists in the world, as well as a composer of merit—Sergei Rachmaninoff.

While at the conservatory of Moscow, Arensky's friendship with the more famous Russian composer Tchaikovsky proved an important influence in his development. Tchaikovsky took a great fancy to the young man, encouraging him in his early efforts at composition, giving him much valuable advice and criticism. He secured a hearing for various of Arensky's works, and strove to point out to him the weaknesses that were more clearly discernible to his experienced eye.

Arensky's life was now full of varied activity and in addition to his duties as a teacher and his continued creative efforts, at 28 he was appointed to a position on the Synodical Council of Church Music at Moscow, holding this post several years. During this period he was offered a post as director of a branch of the Russian Musical society, but refused it, because his time was already so full.

Sonia Sharnova, contraltos, and Alexander Kipnis and Chase Barone, basses.

Conductors include Emil Cooper, noted in Europe, who will conduct the German works, Moranzoni and St. Leger.

It is said this will be the largest opera company yet to have been brought to the Pacific Coast, with three special trains being used to carry 335 persons connected with the company, and ten carloads of scenery, valued at more than $700,000.

Coming to the Pacific Coast by way of the south, the company's engagement just preceding Los Angeles will be in San Antonio, Tex., February 20-21. After Los Angeles the company appears in San Francisco, March 2-7; Seattle, March 9-11; and Portland, March 12-15.

RIVERSIDE

Rebuild Hotel Organ
The organ at Mission Inn, Riverside, has recently been enlarged and modernized until it is now the largest hotel organ in this section of the country, containing 45 speaking stops, and now adequately adapted for the demands of concert work. Newell Parker ably fills the position of organist at the famous hostelry.

A recent dinner at which 300 guests were entertained was given at the inn celebrating the rebuilding of the organ, following which a dedicatory recital was given by the noted organist Alexander Schreiner, who holds the official posts of organist at U. C. L. A., and the First M. E. church of Los Angeles, and staff organist of the Salt Lake Mormon Tabernacle. Over 50 members of the Southern California Guild of Organists attended the Riverside event.

PASADENA

Coleman Chamber Concerts
On Sunday afternoon, February 15, at 3 p. m., a program will be given by the De Buscher Woodwind Ensemble at the Pasadena Community playhouse, under the auspices of the Coleman Chamber Concerts, which have done a great deal for the musical prestige of Pasadena since their founding by Alice Coleman Batchelder, a prominent pioneer in Southern California chamber music work.

NATIONAL

U. S. Fosters Music
It has been estimated that people of the United States are spending four times as much annually for the musical education of their children than is spent for all the public high schools in the country, nearly three times as much as all the colleges, universities, and professional schools, approximating a total of $220,000,000.

WITH THE ARTISTS

Sinding Celebrates Anniversary

Charles G. Conn, founder of the famous band instrument manufacturing concern in Elkhart, Ind., bearing his name, passed away at his home in Los Angeles recently. Mr. Conn had been living there in retirement for many years.

Caruso Royalties Continue
The royalty from Caruso phonograph records is said still to amount to $150,000 a year.

News comes from London that all George Bernard Shaw's plays will soon be published in a single "omnibus" volume which will be issued at the extremely modest price of twelve shillings sixpence or just over $3.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

Criminal Justice in America by Roscoe Pound, published by Henry Holt & Co.

Roscoe Pound is the very eminent dean of the Harvard law school, and anything he has to say upon this subject should be accorded profound attention and respect. He writes with extraordinary clarity upon a difficult subject.

The present confusion of laws and the somewhat haphazard application of various statutes he attributes to the growing complexity of our lives due to new inventions and the growth of our city population. Underlying all these changes are our social heritages of moral and religious standards not only of the founders of our colonies but of the great number of immigrants who came to this country in later years.

Laws in New England show the puritan influence, just as the laws of California reflect the Spanish influence. The influence of the moral standards of a citizenry, says Dean Pound, as reflected in law, will continue long after the children of that generation have died.

Law is the expression of the will of the majority for the correction of a condition that exists at the time. But the so-called native American when he serves upon a jury will all too frequently decide criminal action not on the basis of law but upon his standards of right and wrong. Juries very generally will now fall to convict for failure to observe the "blue laws." In some communities it is very hard to secure conviction for violation of liquor laws. Every community has its own consciousness as to which laws should be enforced and it finds its expression in the activity of the prosecutor's office.

It is very easy to decry the flood of new laws, but the radio, the automobile and the airplane have made necessary laws never conceived in previous generations. Mass production, and the concentration of business in corporate organizations have made other laws necessary.

Legal procedure and our courts are lacking in efficiency because they derive their power either from antiquated state constitutions meant to serve a rural community or because state legislative power is concentrated in the hands of rural legislators because of the fact that representation in the legislature is frequently based on arbitrary territorial districts which no longer permit fair representation in the state legislature. In almost every state, the country counties dominate the legislature or control one of the other branches of it, and due to the limited understanding of the legislative representatives of these country districts, and their frequent antagonism towards the larger cities, laws that are inadequate and not infrequently entirely ineffective are passed for the benefit of the cities.

"In the future the social consciousness must be better expressed than it is today. Criminal law is an attempt to define a workable balance between general security for all and the individual. The juristic thinking of today must transcend both nineteenth century individualism and nineteenth century socialism. Instead of valuing all things in terms of individual personality, or a political society, we must value them in terms of civilization, of raising human powers to their highest possible unfolding towards which spontaneous free individual action and collective organized effort both contribute.

"As this mode of thinking becomes general, the paths of criminal justice will be straightened."

Fascination, by Olive Wadsway, published by Dodd, Mead and company, "Fascination" belongs in the class of light fiction. It is purely a romance. A loveable and charming character, "Val," the heroine, has been left by her father and mother who have gone their own ways, with an uncle. When he dies she is penniless. Her fiancée is an utter cad and when he finds that she is not unkind to her, he does not welcome her into his menage. She wanders about in his world of the stage, securing a position herself for a time on the stage, being annoyed by a villain, and plotted against by other stage folk. Then she goes to California to take her place with him to India where she will go to her mother. Without any announcement Val joins the household of her mother. It is a luxurious household. The mother had a large court of admirers, many of whom turn their attention to Val. The mother does not want the role of mother, furthermore she had been posing as much younger than she can be with Val by her side. The mother finally can stand it no longer and makes plans to remove Val from the scene. In the background is an ideal lover, pledged to marry another, but infatuated with Val.

It is a respectable romance. Precious Bane, by Mary Webb. Those who have not read "Precious Bane" should pause in the reading of the "very latest" to read it. It is absolutely and endurably delightful.

The story is set in the Shropshire country in England. There is noticeable an interesting similarity of expression in this and in "The Great Meadow." It is told in the first person by Prue Sarn. Prue lives on a Shropshire farm with her mother, her brother, Gideon, and her father. Every fourth Sunday, the only times when church service was held in the vicinity, the children were sent to church and when they returned the father catechized them on the text and the sermon and if they did not remember it there was a beating for them. "Father's temper got up desert quick," says Prue. "Maybe that was what gave mother that married-all-over look. But Gideon I only say, to be angry, to be angry, three times. Mostly a look was enough. He'd give you a look like murder, and you'd let him take the way he wanted."

"Gideon," she says, "had a very having spirit."

Prue has a hare lip. "Could I help it," the mother says again and again, "that a hare ran across my path." Always by the frank sympathy of the mother and the fear by others that she was bewitched Prue was made to feel her affliction. It became a part of her reserves and reactions.

One Sunday when Gideon was 17 and Prue a few years younger they holiday instead of going to church and when Gideon cannot answer the father's questions about the church service and the father lifts the rod against him, Gideon turns on him, and with head lowered charges him. The father is knocked over and dies.

Gideon's "having spirit" is the driving force in the lives of all three until the end. Prue works willingly for him because, when they have become wealthy he has promised her money to send for medicine to make her beautiful and cure her hare lip. The little mother is put at whatever tasks Gideon thinks she is able to perform. One of them is watching the pigs as they wallow in the orchard.

It really seems as though everyone would be glad that they had read "Precious Bane." It is a fearful thing to set such store by the future as did Gideon, and he so indifferent to the present. So there is the philosophy of the book, to make it attractive, and the style of Prue's expressions, and her spelling which is pathetically amusing for it is a constant reminder of all what the knowledge of reading and writing meant to Prue.

Art Notes . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lambert, well known Santa Ana patrons visited Laguna last Sunday and purchased a fine marine painting by Frank W. Cupron, entitled "Incoming Tide." This painting has been much admired by visitors to the Fern Burford galleries.

ART AT 1932 OLYMPIC

The fine arts competitions of the Olympic games to be held in Los Angeles from July 30th to August 13th, 1932, will occupy the Los Angeles Museum. The competitions will consist of exhibitions of architecture, paintings, sculpture, literary works and musical compositions. Each Olympic country will present the best of each of these from among the works of their living artists and submit them in international competitions during the games of the 10th Olympiad.

Loren Holmwood, portrait painter has returned to his Laguna home after a two year absence in the east where he painted several prominent people.

Katherine Floyd Hubbard, landscape painter of New York and Cuba, pupil of George Innes Jr. and Aurelius Melero, is planning on joining the Laguna art colony. She visited at Hotel Laguna last Saturday.

About fifteen prominent Eastern Star officials in their orange and white costumes visited the Burford galleries and the Laguna Beach Art gallery last Saturday while in Laguna. They were escorted by Mrs. Loretta Chilton, worthy matron of the Laguna Beach chapter.

LAGUNA ARTIST WORK

The Traveling Exhibition of the Laguna Beach Art association, which was recently shown at the Standish galleries in Los Angeles, will be exhibited at the Tusculum high school Thursday, February 26th at 3 o'clock. This exhibition

BEN HECHT

The Movies Mr. Hecht's Field, By Bruce Catton, NEA Writer

For three or four years Ben Hecht has devoted himself to the movies—turning out, in the process, some rather entertaining film stories. Now he has returned to the novel, and his latest offering, "A Jew in Love," leads one to the sad conclusion that he might just as well return to the movies.

His movie stories are all action. "A Jew in Love" is almost entirely devoid of action. Its central character—one of the most monumentally unpleasant men you will ever meet—is a species of Don Juan, who has a perfectly terrible time when at last he encounters a woman who is unable to give him the first place in her heart; and we get upon page upon page of analysis of his emotions, and passages of conversation between the two, and the net result is boredom. At least found it so.

Mr. Hecht writes as brutally as ever. One still detects a self-conscious desire to be rough and shocking—the same note that kept "Gargoyles" from being quite the book it should have been.

"A Jew in Love" is published by Covici, Friede, Inc., and costs $2.50.

PREVIEW OF ART EXHIBIT HERE

By ROBERT GILBERT

An exhibition of contemporary art by a selected group of fourteen artists in Southern California, is to be held in the new Santa Ana Building at Second and Broadway, from February 16th to 28th inclusive.

The object of the exhibition is to give an organized showing of modern art in an effort to further familiarize the laymen with art of the present day, and encourage the student in liberal and creative expression.

A great many people are opposed to the new art due to a lack of knowledge regarding it. This is not surprising if one knows the history of art, as it has always been the case that any innovation or progression in this field has met with strong opposition and sometimes extreme hatred at first.

The artists represented here as a group are not trying to revolutionize art. This type of work has already been accepted as substantial by the biggest museums, galleries and influential people. The art of today is relative to life of today because it is created by persons who are sensitive to existing things.

The exhibition will afford an excellent opportunity to get a cross-section view of the best of Southern California's fine art.

Book Notes . . .

Robert W. Chambers' fine historical romance, "The Painted Minx" has been transcribed into Braille under the auspices of the Red Cross, and is now among the books at the New York Library available for circulation among blind readers. Another book now being put into Braille under the auspices of the American Red Cross is Major Vivian Gilbert's account of the campaign in Palestine during the World War, "The Romance of the Last Crusade." This book is already in use across the ocean in the National Library for the Blind in London.

Monica Shannon, author of "California Faery Tales" has a new book out, "Goose Grass Rhymes," a certain librarian interested in the little folks wanted particularly mentioned, "California Faery Tales" has really aroused enthusiasm which it is predicted will be matched by enthusiasm for "Goose Grass Rhymes." It is in the Orange County Library.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Browne sailed February 3 for four months in the Mediterranean and in Africa. On the way back they will stop in Holland where Mr. Browne will do

New Titans Loom on World's Horizon

The world is ripe for the appearance of a number of men of supreme genius within the next twenty-five years, believes Professor Pitkin, who looks to men now under 35 for leadership

Words By GILBERT SWAN

Sketches By GEORGE CLARK

Miss Helen Keller . . . a woman whose achievement dwarfs those of Girard's list of U. S. "rulers." . . . Professor Pitkin sees in Miss Keller the classic example of achievement in the face of difficulties.

There has been no better moment than the present . . . for the appearance of a genius. . . . Eagerly-applauding crowds give every sort of break . . . even to the second and third-rater.

THE Titans are coming! Just around some corner, somewhere—a genius of considerable magnitude waits to cast his giant shadow against the skyline.

Whether you go by mathematical calculation or gauge the world's state of mind, the statistics favor the appearance of half a dozen Gargantuan figures within the next quarter of a century.

This is no fragile bit of illusion. It is based on several years of careful study of great and important men and how they got that way. Professor Walter Pitkin, of Columbia University, has been gathering great sheaves of material together for his latest work, "The Psychology of Achievement." He has had his eye close to the keyhole of world figures of the past and present.

"And there has been no better moment in time than the present for the appearance of a genius. I think there will be more than one. I sincerely believe you may expect to see a dozen or more in the course of half a century," says the professor.

"I would not dare to predict what field the genius will appear in; I have a theory that the chances favor a musician. But there should also appear several artists, writers, and others who, though they may never achieve the Goethesque stature, nevertheless will make some of the most important contributions this generation has known.

"AND I advise you to keep an eye on America in this connection. To be sure, the man who hews at a direct line today has more to overcome in the way of diverting and ramified circumstances than the great men of most times. We all know how completely involved modern life has become. The number of interests open to any one individual are innumerable.

"It's possible for any mind to wander in a dozen directions and thus miss that direct and unheeding attack which has marked the very great.

"I'll grant you that the handicaps presented today are many. But they are more than overcome by the tremendous opportunities. The man with almost anything to offer has a greater opportunity at this moment than at any time in history—so it seems to me, at least. He can find, almost overnight, a tremendous driving force centered behind him—he can find his road cleared and his streets paved for him; any number of people will support him with money, and every gateway of publicity and acceptance and appreciation is ready to swing.

"The nation is filled with culturally hungry folk and eagerly applauding crowds who, at this very moment, give every sort of break even to the second and third rater.

"In some measure we have the duplication of those days when the European aristocracy stood as sponsor and benefactor of many historic figures. As any student of those times already knows by heart, the court folk practically endowed their favorites and gained social prestige through this patronage.

"TODAY, with fortunes well pocketed, we have parallels for these folk in many of our millionaires. We have groups that stand at the sidelines and cheer for even the most transient novelty and we have magazines and papers ready to carry the cheering over the land.

"The exceptional individual never had a better break."

While considering the merely mathematical chances that genius has in this day and age, Professor Pitkin has been particularly absorbed, however, in human achievement and achievers both historic and contemporary.

The conquest of handicaps seems to Professor Pitkin an outstanding element in considering achievement. He takes exception, for instance, to former Ambassador Girard's list of "most important" Americans.

"The list is based largely on power—the power a certain group of men wield through money or other means," the professor pointed out. "One cannot argue with the list from his standpoint. But, after all, if one's father has amassed a great fortune and a son needs merely to take this fortune and have a fine time piling it up—one can hardly give credit for personal achievement."

Babe Ruth . . . a man in a million. . . . Exact tests of his abilities show that the Babe is really a rarity, and that his position at the top . . . is due to his rare qualities.

When he was a youngster . . . Paderewski, the great pianist . . . practiced 12 to 15 hours a day . . . a schedule which took "far more braven than two burly blacksmiths." . . . Another example of triumph over terrific handicaps.

Professor Pitkin pointed to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as a typical example by one endowed with Croesus power by a father.

Checking over the achievers who have conquered seemingly insurmountable obstacles, the professor is inclined to place Helen Keller at the top of the list.

"This is a classic example of what can be done in taking the hurdles," he went on. "The story of Miss Keller is a story of achievement in the face of every obstacle—a truly Titanic feat. I would certainly place her at the head of any list I might make.

And in arranging the highly interesting statistics for his recent work, Professor Pitkin points to none other than Babe Ruth as an example of another type of achievement.

Ruth comes under the heading of "rarity in achievement." A tremendous value is placed upon a rare museum specimen; a rare book and a rare painting. When a human rarity comes along he must be similarly catalogued.

Power does not indicate genius. . . . A man may be pitchforked into a position of power . . . and yet have none of the characteristics which make achievement possible.

ON this basis of reckoning, Ruth has a potential value of ten millions a year. This figure, to be sure, is based on mere mathematics.

To begin with, Pitkin approaches achievement as being considerably more elastic and broader than mere success. It is, in a brief definition, "the accomplishment of something one set out to accomplish. It does not necessitate having built up a fortune or sold a few billion bottles of talcum powder.

In gathering his data, the professor delved deeply into the intimate details of hundreds of lives and finally selected a half-hundred or so for expert analysis—taking them from their glandular functions to their hurdle race against adversity.

And so Babe Ruth comes into his picture, because whether his goal be first base or the Louvre, the rarity of a man lies in his being "one in a million." And "the Babe" is even rarer than that. He is, in all probability, one in several millions.

"The Babe," it now becomes known, has been under the microscope at Columbia, so to speak. He has been taken apart like an alarm clock and put back together again.

"He is 90 per cent efficient in co-ordination," the professor has discovered. "A very high ranking is 60 per cent in such tests."

IF you would analyze the great home-runner at closer range, he has a nervous stability that passes 499 out of 500 persons. And his eyes function faster and more accurately than normal vision by something like 12 per cent.

"His eyes are the best of five pairs and his ears are the best of five pairs . . . thus making the combination of eyes and ears as the best out of 25 men. His general capacity for attention is better than a hundred men"—such are a few of the professor's expert recordings.

To go even deeper into this analysis, the king of swat may be found to have almost perfect metabolism. This is what accounts for his physical genius.

"For many years the Babe has eaten as many as 10 meals a day," the report continues. "His radiant heat is so intense that he cannot wear even the lightest underwear on the coldest day of winter."

The professor believes that whether you look at a skyscraper or a baseball diamond, "the view is the same. In every art, profession and technique, the heights are lonely. The crowd tells the young man and woman that they can become leaders by making the most of ability.

IN the language of cold mathematics, this is a downright lie and many a heart has been broken by this worthless get-rich-quick sort of preaching.

In his studies of eminent figures, Dr. Pitkin finds that a lack of certain traits is fully as important as the possession of others.

Thus, he records, "had Henry Ford been tainted even with a chemical trace of artistry, would he have achieved what he did? I doubt it very much. Checking closely on his accomplishment one finds that whereas all Ford's rivals undertook to sell automobiles, Ford undertook to sell transportation.

"He ignored the vehicle per se and centered his attention on performance. Which is the secret of his success. Scores of others thought of appearance and lines and all that sort of thing, while Henry's intent was directed on getting the greatest possible number of people over the greatest amount of territory. He wasn't interested in beauty—his mind was on transport."

Just the same, the professor holds that if Edison and Ford and all the rest had never been born, had they never appeared upon the earth, there would have been someone else or a series of someone else who would have accomplished much the same thing.

One of Professor Pitkin's most interesting studies is on the pianist, Paderewski.

Pitkin does not rank him among the very great artists. He places Josef Hofmann, for instance, head and shoulders above the other. And what, you may ask, is the matter with Paderewski?

UNIVERSITY tests show that Paderewski is affected by a singularly defective musical memory. He cannot retain the integrated pattern of any long piece for more than 48 hours. This plague has infested his entire life.

And this, coupled with a "frailty of motor habits," imposed a terrific handicap that Paderewski fought constantly to conquer. And to a very large measure he fought down the plaguing elements. They say that no concert hero ever worked harder to keep in form. He practiced from 12 to 15 hours a day when he was younger. Which, as the professor points out, took "more mere braven than two burly blacksmiths."

It is Professor Pitkin's conclusion that, in taking the measure of a man, a score of ingredients have to be examined—such as sensitivity of eye and ear and nose . . . certain traits of general intelligence . . . mechanical intelligence . . . social intelligence . . . dexterity . . . interests . . . energy and a host of other elements.

He looks to the millions of youngsters who are now under the age of 35 to become "lords of the Great Tomorrow."

"There are four out of five ablest citizens out of every hundred now under the age of 35," he declares. "And these will make up the 250,000 captains of industry, professors, scholars, scientists, etc., who sometime during the next 40 years will be leading the United States."

AND this rising army of Titans need guidance and goal. He believes that, in more pioneer times, endurance, physique, money lust and audacity may have been the most valuable of human traits.

But this is no longer true. The seeking of rare ability becomes daily more important.

"America can no longer rest assured of her leadership on the strength of great natural resources. Every month the lead and the advantage undergoes shrinkage. Others are coming up. Russia, within five years, may dominate the grain market of the world—and probably will. Give Russia and Germany another decade and they will have our mass production."

Be all this as it may, all indications point to the rise of several geniuses—from musicians to astrologers and back.

Professor Pitkin believes firmly that the Titans are coming.

FARM NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE

USE OF WORM PARASITES IN COUNTY URGED

(Editor's note: Following is an address given over radio station KREG February 9.)

BY ERIC E. EASTMAN
Assistant Farm Advisor

There has been considerable progress made during the winter in determining the way in which the pin worm behaves in the field during the cold weather and also there has been some progress in determining some of the facts concerning the life history and the parasitic enemies of the pin worm. Furthermore, some of the previous scientific literature has been unearthed, which gives us better description of the various life stages of the insect and its relations.

Before describing in more detail these advances in our knowledge of the local pin worm situation, it is necessary to state that these advances are not sufficient to curtail the ravages of the pin worm, nor even sufficiently great to enable a war campaign to be waged against the moth.

Second Survey Made

In the first talk on the pin worm in Orange county over KREG on December 15, 1930, the practical suggestions made were for a thorough clean-up of all old tomato fields, plowing and cultivating as frequently as possible and the burning of all old vines. Since the tomato, black nightshade and pepper plants are close relatives, and the pests in consequence are somewhat interchangeable, it was also suggested that the tomato growers and the pepper growers should co-operate in the cleaning up of these three plants before the first of the year.

Since that talk was given there have been two or more cold spells which might have been expected to kill off the tomato pin worm. A second survey of the county was therefore made to observe the pin worm conditions prevailing during the latter part of January.

Three Factors in Control

The results of the survey showed the futility of even hoping for control of the pin worm by means of a cultural control program such as a winter clean-up campaign. This is occasioned by three factors: first, Orange county's much advertised climate is such that some tomatoes are being grown in small quantities at last throughout the entire year. Commercially, the new plantings, almost if not quite, overlap the picking of the last of some nearby crop. So far as the pin worm is concerned, tomato plants are available all the year around. Secondly, the non-professional tomato grower, which includes backyard vines and crops interplanted with young citrus and avocado groves, etc., frequently, if not usually, allowed to remain on the ground throughout the winter season.

Perhaps the intent is to use them as a covercrop in some cases, but more frequently the undesirability of working heavy orchard soils in the wet winter condition is the outstanding reason for allowing the interplanted tomato crop to remain "in situ" during the winter. Incidentally, there is no reason for plowing under the crop at that time, other than to control the pin worm, etc., and of course the average non-professional tomato grower is blithely unaware of the existence of the insect, despite the publicity of the radio, press, farm bureau and extension service channels.

Third, the pin worm, even in such an exceptionally cold winter as the present one has been, is able to survive in numbers in all the tomato growing sections of the county.

Found in Abundance

In the more elevated and warmer sections, both the moths and the "worms" were found in relative abundance, the worms on both leaves and fruit. In the coldest areas only the adult moths were found in any numbers and considerable search was sometimes necessary to find the worms. In these cold areas the worms were found mainly on the leaves, if not entirely so. The reason advanced for this is that when the fruit remains at a constantly low temperature for a period of time the worm does not prosper and either moves out onto the leaf, or pupates in the soil, according to its age. A pin worm all done up in silk, in a huddle with the little tomato leaves, is favorably situated to withstand more than the few frosty hours which are likely to occur in Orange county. The tomato fruit, however, is likely to get cold and stay rather uniformly cold, especially if under the vine or otherwise insulated from the sun's heat. Whether this theory or hypothesis is correct or not, the pin worm prefers the leaves to the fruit in cold weather. The preference is at least as great as 100 to 1.

Methods of Control

The three reasons for the failure of the clean-up campaign to control the pin worm having been outlined, it is now necessary to consider what the next method of attack may be. As outlined in the first radio talk, there are two other methods of possible control that might be developed.

The first of these is poison dust or sprays. Obviously, poisons that affect human beings and the higher animals which might eat sprayed or dusted tomatoes or vines, are out of the question, i. e., chemicals poisonous to man cannot be used excepting the early growth stage of the vines before fruit is formed. Poisons toxic to insects alone must be used. There are several of this type of poisons known, but only field tests properly made and controlled can determine the effectiveness of this method. Doubtless trials with these substances will be made during the coming season in Orange county, under the direction of the proper research authorities. The extension service and the farm bureau will co-operate as far as possible in these tests, and the results will be announced as soon as they are available. Such experiments are at best slow; on the average, contradictory, and at the worst disappointing. So we will try out the chemicals without raising our hopes too high.

IT'S TREE PLANTING TIME

Biological Control

The second method of control is the most satisfactory of all when it works, namely, biological control. This is merely a polite-sounding name for a savage and terrible program, namely, developing and releasing enemies of the pin worms which will devour them. This method is very successful in certain instances. At least two insects which would, if unchecked, destroy the citrus industry within a short time, are effectively held under control by means of their parasitic enemies. There are seven of these enemy parasites of the pin worm so far known, and all of them are wasps. Six are very tiny and one is of larger size—the solitary wasp. At least two of these, and possibly three of them, have been isolated and sent in for identification.

There is a possibility that one or all of these might be reared in immense numbers in an insectary and released in the tomato fields at an opportune time to destroy at least the pin worms which would otherwise infest the principal part of the tomato crop. Once established in numbers, there is always a possibility that the parasite might maintain its superiority in numbers and thus practically eliminate the pin worm problem. The method of biological control is therefore being studied and developed in Orange county by competent workers, and all possible assistance will be given them by the farm bureau and the extension service.

Since the last talk on the pin worm, the pupal stage has been discovered. The pin worm pupates in the soil, or under old leaves, etc. This gives us knowledge of all but the egg stage in Orange county. The moths are not induced, or have not as yet been induced, to lay eggs in the insectary, and the process has not yet been observed in the

National Association Asks For Planting of Trees Throughout Year

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 14.—Arbor day will soon be here and, according to the American Tree association, more trees will be planted this season than ever before.

Although Arbor day doesn't fall until March in some states, and as late as April and May in others, it will be observed in some places in February. This is because thousands will plant trees in honor of George Washington this year, marking ahead of time the bicentennial of his birth, which falls in 1932.

It is being urged this year that tree planting be done on any date, not only on the official date of Arbor day. The American Tree association has prepared a pamphlet called "Bicentennial Tree Planting Book," which explains in detail just the way to plant trees and the care to take of them after they have taken root. It also explains how to register them as memorial trees.

Kill Rabbits To Feed Unemployed

ELKO, Nev., Feb. 14.—The lowly field rabbit has proved its worth. These rabbits, a pest and dangerous to crops, are being slaughtered here to feed the unemployed in Nevada and California. Hunters are paid four cents per rabbit. The meat of the animals has been found to be tasty and nutritious.

Since the last talk on the pin worm, the pupal stage has been discovered. The pin worm pupates in the soil, or under old leaves, etc. This gives us knowledge of all but the egg stage in Orange county. The moths are not induced, or have not as yet been induced, to lay eggs in the insectary, and the process has not yet been observed in the

410,440 COWS TESTED YEARLY IN CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 7.—Important gains in California's never-ending campaign for health and cleanliness were reported today by the state department of agriculture.

Marked increase in the number of official tuberculin tests applied as a means of insuring wholesome market milk during 1930 were announced by Dr. J. P. Iverson, chief of the division of animal industry. A total of 410,440 animals were tested during the year by veterinarians employed by the division or by co-operating federal authorities. This compares to a similar total of 334,492 in 1929.

These tests were conducted under the pure milk law and the eradication area, accredited herd and calf segregation area plans of tuberculous control, and according to Dr. Iverson, furnish an outstanding record reflecting much credit to progressive dairymen and cattle owners of the state.

Increase in the number of tests is credited partially to desire of dairymen to produce raw milk in accordance with the pure milk law, and partially to a growing realization that eradication of tuberculosis is desirable from an economic standpoint, according to the animal industry division chief. More than half of the 1930 tests were applied in accord with the pure milk law which requires that milk or other dairy products for distribution must be obtained from tuberculosis-free cows unless the products are pasteurized. Under this act, 10,174 herds, including 255,443 animals were tuberculin tested. Approximately 80 percent of these herds were found free from disease.

NEW VARIETIES OF SPINACH FAVORED

Among the greens and salad crops which may be grown in the home garden during the winter months is spinach. It is quite hardy and will withstand considerable frost.

Sow the seeds in rows and space them a sufficient distance apart that they will have room to make good sized leaves. There is no use bothering with the old-fashioned small-leaved spinach when the new heavy crinkled-leaved varieties are so much finer and give a much better yield per plant.

The one requisite for growing good spinach is good soil, moisture, and cool weather. In many districts in Pacific coast states, it may be grown throughout the winter months. Fertilize the spinach beds liberally with barnyard manure if it can be procured, and if not, use a commercial fertilizer. With the heavier foliated varieties of spinach, the crop may be prolonged by cutting the leaves, and leaving the plant to produce more. Usually, however, it is the custom to pull up the entire plant so that it produces only a single crop.

FARM BY PRODUCTS
Utilization of the by-products of farming is one of the solutions to successful farming, according to Dr. W. W. Skinner, of the U. S. department of agriculture. Farmers should utilize the skimmed portion of their crops, as well as the cream, he says. For instance, he cites that from every 100 pounds of grain produced there is a by-product of from 100 to 250 pounds of straw or husks. This can be sold for a good sum, he advises.

UPWARD TREND IN SHIPMENTS OF NAVELS SEEN

While many conflicting factors make it difficult to mark specifically the beginning of a definite recovery in business conditions in this country, it seems fairly certain that recovery will be in evidence during the latter half of 1931, continuing with greater momentum into 1932. With such developments, the demand for farm products during the crop season 1931-32 is likely to show a considerable improvement from the present unusually low levels.

This is the situation as viewed by Dr. H. R. Wellman, agricultural economics specialist in the University of California Agricultural Extension service. Issuing his second annual Outlook Report on California crops, which will be available at the farm advisor's office next week, Dr. Wellman takes the view that improvement is to be expected during the latter part of the present year. He discusses the position of the principal crops in the state and in Orange county.

Crops Reviewed

A brief review of each crop is herewith presented:

"Navels": Available facts point to an upward trend in the shipments of both oranges and grapefruit at the time California navels are marketed. Although it is probable that the peak of production of navels in this state has been reached, Florida, Texas and Arizona are capable of producing larger crops of citrus fruits than they have yet produced, whenever conditions are favorable to high yields.

"Valencias": Large additional plantings of valencia oranges at this time are likely to result in materially lower prices when they come into bearing. The prospective increase in production from the acreage already planted is likely to be ample to provide for the probable increase in demand that is expected to develop during the next few years.

Sees Competition

"Grapefruit": Available facts indicate that California grapefruit growers are likely to experience much greater competition during the winter and spring months in the coming years than they have in recent years. Growers of summer grapefruit are in a more favorable position.

"Lemons": Growers should not expect the very high prices for lemons which prevailed in 1929-1930 to continue during the coming years. These high prices were largely the result of unusually small shipments during the winter months, due to excessively warm weather throughout the country.

Production Sample

"The production of walnuts already in prospect will probably be more than sufficient to supply to domestic requirements for unshelled walnuts at the present level of prices unless there is an extraordinary increase in the demand for them. If such an increase in demand does not occur, the future trend of prices to growers may be expected to be downward."

"Prices of most of the varieties of beans grown in California are likely to be somewhat higher in 1931-32 than they are in 1930-31. The very low prices now prevailing will tend to reduce the acreage planted in 1931. Yields per acre are not likely to be as high as they were in 1930 when they were 11.3 per cent above the average of the previous five years and 12.7 per cent above the yields of 1929."

SALPICLOSSIS HELD IDEAL BORDER PLANT

The modern garden is planned to include flowers for many purposes—they are a necessary part of the exterior picture, and also are grown to provide flowers for interior decoration.

One of the flowers that provides color to the garden and lends itself so admirably to artistic indoor arrangement is the salpiclossis. The seeds of these must be sown where the plants are to remain, for it is most difficult to transplant successfully. It grows to a height of about three feet, and may be had in a great variety of colors, and combinations of colors, including blue and gold, crimson and gold, and other beautiful combinations.

As a border plant, and for shallow flower bowl arrangement, the Calendula, in the many up-to-date forms, is ideal. Gaillardias are easily grown because they are not particular as to soil or climate, and their bloom is very floriferous, and are very adaptable to the building up of bouquets.

PROGRESS MADE

Bovine tuberculosis eradication made rapid progress in 1930, a survey of the U. S. department of agriculture shows. Since 1917, when the campaign was started, veterinarians engaged in the work have tested more than 75,000,000 cattle, more than 2,000,000 of which were found tubercular and slaughtered. The percentage of infection has been reduced from 4 in 1922 to 1.7 at the end of 1930.

CHAMPION CO-ED MILKER

She'd never done any milking before the Little International Livestock show at Fargo, N. D., but after the show was over, Myrna Ottinger, shown here with the animal she milked, came out the champion co-ed milker. Myrna is a junior in the school of education at the North Dakota Agricultural college, in Fargo.

DAIRY REPORT AIRSHIP CRASH COMPLETED BY MAY DETERMINE STATE EXPERT FUTURE POLICY

A summary report of the outlook for the livestock industry, dairying and poultry business has just been issued by the Agricultural Extension service of the University of California and will be available in bulletin form at the farm advisor's office next week.

Dr. H. R. Wellman, specialist in agricultural economics, has just completed a report on the status of the various livestock industries after conferring with the national economics conference at the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington recently.

Briefly, his report discusses the industries as follows:

"Beef cattle prices during the first half of 1931 are expected to average considerably below those of the first half of 1930, but prices of most classes and grades during the second half will probably average about the same as those of a year earlier. Slaughter supplies in 1931 probably will be larger than those of last year but the increase will be mainly in unfinished cattle marketed during the last half of the year and by that time consumer demand for beef will tend to be above the present low levels.

"The dairy industry is faced with the prospect of continued low average prices in 1931. The long time outlook, however, is favorable. One of the most hopeful signs in the California dairy industry is the increasing percentage of dairy products utilized in the form of higher priced products such as fluid milk and cream. Since the population of California is increasing at a rapid rate, a further increase in the local markets for these products may be expected."

"Prices of hogs for the year ending September 30, 1931, will probably average lower than in 1929-30. Although supplies for slaughter may be somewhat smaller, this is expected to be more than offset by the weaker demand for hog products. During the marketing year, which begins October 1, 1931, however, the hog industry is expected to be in a more favorable position than in the current year since indications point to slightly smaller supplies and to some improvement in both domestic and foreign demand."

"When pullets hatched in 1931 come into production, prices of eggs will probably be considerably above the present level. Supplies of eggs next fall and winter are expected to be lower and consumer demand higher than the corresponding period of 1930-31."

22,706 Dairy Cows Shipped To State During Past Year

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 14.—High cost of diseased dairy herds was indirectly reflected today in records of importation of tuberculosis-free cattle to swell California's clean milk supply during 1930.

Brought from 29 states and Canada, 22,706 dairy cows were shipped into the state last year. Several shipments came from New England and other eastern states, but the greatest number were from the middle west and western states. Utah was the source of the largest number, 5,083, while 4,569 were brought from Oregon and 4,314 from Idaho, according to Dr. J. P. Iverson, chief of the division of animal industry.

Each cow imported was accompanied by a health certificate assuring freedom from tuberculosis or other diseases. Demand in the state for disease free milk cattle is responsible for the heavy shipment from other states, according to the Animal Industry division chief.

BORER CHECKED

Last summer's drought had one advantage, the U. S. department of agriculture reports. It was exceptionally unfavorable to the corn borer and checked, to some extent, the advance of this insect pest. Despite this slight check, however, the quarantine area of the borer has been extended.

AIRSHIP CRASH COMPLETED BY MAY DETERMINE STATE EXPERT FUTURE POLICY

BY H. L. PERCY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, (UP)—The appalling disaster to the British airship, R-101, in which 48 lives were lost, sounded the death knell of airships so far as Britain is concerned, according to a consensus of the public.

Stunned by the catastrophe, the worst in airship history, people have generally expressed the opinion that as a means of long-distance traveling large airships were not feasible. Even on the same day as the crash, October 4, employees at the airship works, Cardington, Bedfordshire, from which the fatal flight to India was started, declared that the works would be closed down and the R-100, Britain's only other large airship, broken up.

Events during the last three months have not, however, fully carried out these predictions. The fate of airship development in this country depends entirely on the government's policy as the result of the report of the inquiry which is now proceeding, headed by Sir John Simon.

Whether this policy will favor future airships development is hard to say. It is pointed out that the government lost over $5,000,000 when the R-101 crashed, that public sentiment is opposed to airships, and that the Labor government's sanction of the expenditure of more money on airships would probably react unfavorably.

At least it is certain that there will be no building for many months, if only because, even before the R-101 disaster it was decided to devote the next year to the development of mechanical handling of airships rather than the development of the ships themselves.

Immediate Problem
The most immediate problem, the solution of which is greatly intriguing the public, is the fate of the R-100. The same size as the R-101 before the latter had an exciting year, which begins October 1, 1931, however, the R-100 has come through all her tests with flying colors.

At the present time she is being repaired and overhauled, after her flight to Canada and back, at Cardington. The gasbags have been deflated, and the outer covering, which had become rather worn, has been removed. No new cover is to be fitted, however, until the government decides what it is going to do.

In the meantime a depleted staff of 500—one-third were taken off the payroll a few weeks after the R-101 crashed—is making minor repairs and keeping the R-100 in condition. Whether she flies again, or dies, depends on the government, and government action depends on the Simon report.

POPPIES POPULAR ON PACIFIC COAST

The planting season for poppy seeds in the west is almost continuous. It begins in the early fall in the lower altitudes and may continue throughout the winter and early spring months. The intense interest in poppies is responsible for hybridists making a special effort to bring into being new colors and combinations of colors.

Some of the more recent introductions are American Legion, a tall stately poppy of brilliant orange scarlet; the Tall Double poppies in salmon shades; the Double Peony flowered poppy and those large round sorts commonly referred to as carnation-flowered. The seeds of poppies should always be sown where the plants are to remain. They are not particular as to soil and will thrive under ordinary garden cultivation. They are the heralds of spring and make a most colorful garden. It is well to mix the seeds of poppies with sand before sowing. This gives a greater distribution.

QUESTION BOX FOR GROWERS DUE FEB. 16

Beginning each day at noon and continuing 10 minutes, talks of interest to farmers, growers and producers will be given during the week beginning February 16, under the auspices of the Agricultural Extension service, co-operating with radio station KFI, as follows:

February 16, "Walnut Question Box," M. H. Kimball, assistant farm advisor, Los Angeles county.
February 17, "The Fire Prevention School," Spencer Turner, forester and fire warden, Los Angeles county.

February 18, "Production of Mint in Kern County," L. A. Burch, agricultural commissioner, Kern county.

February 19, "State Division of Forestry in Southern California," Walter H. Coupe, deputy state forester.

February 20, "Breeds of Rabbits Best Suited for Commercial Purposes Under Western Conditions," Judge George Green, rabbit producer.

February 21, "Citrus Institute," H. J. Wilder, farm advisor, San Bernardino county.

WORKERS TEST MENU AND GAIN ADDED WEIGHT

NEW YORK.—A model menu that will feed a family of five for a week at a cost of only $10.42 was tested by four social workers here, who found that the menu, devised by Miss S. Elita Sadow of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Boston Federated Charities added to their weight.

A description of the experiment described in a social workers' magazine showed that the four adults went without food between meals for the week in which the menu was tested in order to duplicate as nearly as possible the caloric needs of the "standard" family of five. Their breakfasts consisted of fruit, a cereal, toast and coffee or milk. On three days during the week they had soup for lunch. Their dinners were three course meals, with fish, meat, or salad and vegetables as the principal course.

In making up the menu to supply the minimum needs for the "standard" family of two adults, a boy of 12, a girl of 7, and a child of three, Miss Sadow took into consideration the differences in occupations of individuals as well as the bodily requirements of the different age groups.

Three conditions are necessary for the successful working out of the menu, the description of the experiment pointed out. "That all members of the family are in good health, and that the mother has enough knowledge of foods to be able to make the correct selection and a knowledge of the seasonal variation of foods and prices."

A typical day's menu for the four social workers included a breakfast of orange, cereal, bread and butter, and coffee. Their luncheon on that day included fish chowder, cottage cheese, salad with French dressing, bread and butter, milk, and cottage pudding with chocolate sauce. For dinner they ate Scotch barley soup, meat balls, potato, sweet and sour cabbage, bread, fresh fruit salad, and tea.

FIRE INSTITUTE HELD FEB. 20-21

The second Rural Fire Institute to be held by the University of California Agricultural Extension service is to be held at the University of California at Los Angeles February 20 and 21, according to announcement from the farm advisor's office. Woodbridge Metcalf, extension forester, says attendance in excess of that at the first institute, held at the Branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis, in December, 1929, is expected.

The state division of forestry, the United States Forest service, and the Los Angeles Forestry department, will co-operate with Metcalf, and J. P. Fairbank, extension specialist in agricultural engineering, in giving the program. Eight official tank truck equipments have been promised, and several manufacturers of fire equipment have signified their intention of displaying new machinery.

SEED TREATMENT
Experiment station of the University of Illinois has prepared a seed treatment which is said to be more effective than any yet tried there. It is composed of ethylmercury-chloride, and is said to result in a large acreage production increase.

WHEAT SUPPLY
Total supply of wheat available for this season in the United States is about 1,114,000,000 bushels, according to an estimate of C. R. Arnold, rural economist of Ohio state university. This includes a grover of old wheat.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAI COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The Travel Man said, "Please think twice and you will know we can't cook rice. What would we cook it on, my son? Please try and tell me that. We haven't any stove with us and, anyway, 'twould make a fuss. I really think that your suggestion sounds a wee bit flat."

Poor Scouty said, "I guess you're right, I'm just a thoughtless Tynymite, but maybe we can buy some, cooked. I'm hungry for some, now. If some cafe we can hall, where they have fine cooked rice on sale, I'll gladly treat this hungry bunch. That's fair, you will allow."

The others rushed up to his side. "Oh, you're a good sport," they all cried. The Travel Man then added, "There's a cafe near at hand. It's just a few blocks down the street. Come on—but this will be my treat." And shortly they were eating rice, and, my, it tasted grand.

When finished Clowny said, "Tut-tut, a dandy town. I'm glad we're here. Let's go down to the docks and watch the big boats come and go." The others all agreed this plan was very good and off they ran. The docks were reached and they watched boats that traveled fast and slow.

Soon Carpy shouted, "Goodness knows, I'd like to ride on one of those." Then Clowny cried, "Oh, look! I see a funny two-wheeled cart. A native's pulling it around. I wonder just where he is bound. I'd ride the cart, if I was sure it wouldn't fall apart."

"Don't worry," said the Travel Man. "I'll promptly fix things so you can have just the trip you're wishing for. The man will treat you right." Soon Clowny, with a silly grin, walked to the cart and crawled right in. Then, as the native pulled him 'round, he surely looked a sight.

(The Tynymites watch some native wrestlers in the next story.)

Missing Letter Links

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For instance, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

research for a book on Spinoza which he hopes to complete for the 300th anniversary of Spinoza's birth in 1932. It will be recalled that Mr. Browne spoke in Santa Ana under the auspices of the Ebell club last year.

Mr. Browne says that it will be the first life of Spinoza in English in forty years and that there is none in print at present.

The Macmillan Company will publish "Kant: A Study in the Interpretation of Christian History," by Lewis Browne this spring.

A long-awaited definitive biography of James Fenimore Cooper, the great American pioneer novelist, written by the well-known critic, Henry Walcott Boynton, is announced by Century for publication early in May. In announcing Mr. Boynton's book, the publishers point out that the one important existing biography of Cooper, Lounsbury's, was written nearly fifty years ago and without access to the family papers and intimate correspondence which have, up to the present time, been jealously guarded by the Cooper family. This strong family rule was abrogated for the first time by the present James Fenimore Cooper, of Albany and Cooperstown, New York, who placed a great mass of personal material pertaining to the life of the American novelist at the complete disposal of Mr. Boynton.

A series of important lectures by the great German philosopher-teacher, Immanuel Kant, appear in print for the first time in the volume just published by The Century Company, under the title "Lectures on Ethics." The Manuscript was discovered only a short time ago among the notes taken down by a student at Konigsberg University some time during the years 1775-1781. The volume is considered of unusual importance because of the fact that it reveals the material out of which Kant built his systematic theory of morals. The lectures were delivered during the period in which the problems of Kant's "Critique of Pure Reason" were being worked out.

hibition has been arranged by Mrs. Joseph Kleitich, who has been asked to act as art chairman for Tustin high school.

Mrs. Fern Burford will give a talk on art to the visitors during the exhibition. Baroness Violet Wenner, who is coming to Laguna Beach to address the Laguna Beach Art Association at its annual annual birthday dinner will make a short address as will Mr. Carroll Crosby of Laguna Beach. Mr. Harold McCormick, wealthy art patron and collector will be present.

This meeting is open to the public and those unable to attend the exhibit in Los Angeles are cordially invited to be present.

BIRTHDAY DINNER
Two years ago the doors of the new Laguna Beach art gallery were opened to its members and the public. The reception of that day was one of the most largely attended of any social events in the history of the Laguna Beach Art Association.

This year the second anniversary of the opening of the gallery will be celebrated with a birthday dinner at the Casa del Camino on February 16th. The principal speaker of the evening will be Baroness Violet Wenner, member of nobility, and artist of high attainments, who is making a special trip from her home in Chicago to address the group. Her subject will be "Portrait Painting and Its Relations to Past and Present Times."

Many artists are expected to come to Laguna Beach for this gathering and it is anticipated that the event will be one that will go down as one of the important in the history of the association.

The studio tea at the Fullerton high school Pottery studio on Tuesday, February 10th, presided over by Mrs. J. Arthur Miller, district P-T-A. art chairman, brought together P-T-A. art chairmen from most of the local Parent-Teacher Associations in the county.

Plans for the activities for the remainder of the year were discussed. How the collections of colored reproductions of paintings of American artists which children may collect into a portfolio and enter in the contest sponsored by the P-T-A. was demonstrated and much interest was shown in the project. The prizes for the annual P-T-A. poster contest for children were announced.

A special exhibit of pottery, jewelry and metals was shown at the studio. The work done by Glen Lukens and by his students is some of the best craft work to be seen anywhere and was an inspiration to the chairman that was well worth taking back to their local organizations.

FRED HINZE DIES AT BURLINGAME

Mrs. Aline Hinze, of 701 South Ross street, has received word that Fred Hinze, brother of the late H. W. Hinze, died February 13 at Burlingame, at the age of 71.

Mr. Hinze will be remembered as a sugar expert and associate of his brother in building the Southern California Sugar factory on South Main street some years ago.

He leaves a widow, three daughters, two sons and five grandchildren, all of Burlingame.

Court Notes

Petition for letters of administration in the estate of Peter Morgan Bonner was filed today by Marian P. Bonner. The estate does not exceed $2500 in value. It is shown in the petition.

Judgment of $1915.30 was awarded to the plaintiffs yesterday by Judge James L. Allen after hearing evidence in the action brought by Hayden T. Marsh, et al., against Charlie Mitchell, et al., on a trust deed and note.

Assets of the estate of Eleanor Babcock amount to $7250. It was shown today in an inventory and appraisal which was filed with County Clerk J. M. Backs.

A decree of quiet title to property located in Rancho San Juan Cajon de Santa Ana was granted by Judge James L. Allen yesterday to the plaintiffs, Harvey Hill and others, after hearing evidence in their complaint against Gailard C. Page, et al.

The bulk of the estate of J. W. T. Kimball is to go to the widow, Emily A. Kimball. It was shown in the copy of the will, which was filed for probate today by Mrs. Kimball, who is named executrix. The petition states that the estate is valued in excess of $10,000. Requests of $10 each are made to a son, True Kimball, of Santa Ana, and a daughter, Edith M. Stedman, of Selma, California. A life interest in the balance of the estate goes to the widow.

The Balboa Palisades Club, et al., are defendants in a complaint which was filed today by E. E. Stuart. The petition states that an alleged unpaid balance of $30,000 on a note and foreclosure of a mortgage on property securing the note are asked. The note was executed February 25, 1925 and interest has been paid to December 19, 1930.

Glendale Outlook In Track Dismal

concentrate on the $80, with the possibility of running the mile also if his health permits.

Ferris and Nelson are Glendale's only serious threats in the flat races. The latter is a two-miler who recently gave Hoys of Los Angeles jockey quite a tiff. Out of this pair, however, Tension doesn't have more than a prayer to pick up a single point from the century dash on through the two-mile.

Another old veteran returns in the hurdles, Bergeron, a better than ordinary timber topper two years ago, seeks a comeback. He used to give Juddy Welch a roarin' good race when that worthy was competing for Pasadena and he probably will cut a fancy figure as Gilman's successor this year. He also will compete in the high jump, where he is good for about 5 feet 9 inches.

Frankie, consistent at 12 feet in the pole vault; Meehan, a shot putter dependable around 40 feet; Kelly and Newby, a pair of javelin tossers, the former having already hit 165 feet, and Walter Stevens, a six-foot high jumper are other prominent candidates.

Stevens recently cleared the bar at six even to tie the touted Darcy Jones of Los Angeles, former Southern California prep champion.

Gloom is as thick as pea soup at Glendale this year, but the sky was just as cloudy a year ago. Tension pulled the biggest coup in years when he led his crippled Buick to the championship, but the manpower was there. Two old-timers seeking comeback may do wonders this year, but there is no basis for building up a third championship case. Regardless of all optimistic advices, Glendale faces its worst depression in cinderpath fortunes in five years.

The Case Complete

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

THE CROOKED MAN

Who Killed Colonel Barclay?

"You coward!" she cried over and over. "What can be done now? Give me back my life! I will never breathe the same air with you again! You coward!"

There was a dreadful cry in the man's voice, a crash, a piercing scream from the woman...

"Well, we may save the police some trouble in this direction," said Holmes, glancing at the haggard figure by the window. "Mycroft, will you be kind enough to step out for a policeman?"

The End

Beddington, the imitation Pycroft, had apparently obtained entrance to the office by telling the watchman he had left something behind. Then he shattered the unfortunate man's skull with a pistol, and rapidly rifled the largest safe....

THE CROOKED MAN

Who Killed Colonel Barclay?

"You coward!" she cried over and over. "What can be done now? Give me back my life! I will never breathe the same air with you again! You coward!"

There was a dreadful cry in the man's voice, a crash, a piercing scream from the woman...

"Well, we may save the police some trouble in this direction," said Holmes, glancing at the haggard figure by the window. "Mycroft, will you be kind enough to step out for a policeman?"

The End

SERRA AND KING HONORED

of St. Francis of Assisi, the founder of the Franciscan order. The young novice, Junipero, besides being frail of body, was so short of stature that he was unable to reach the book stand when he sang in the choir. But after he made his vows in religion he began to grow and reached a medium height. Even before he was old enough to be ordained a priest he earned the degree of Doctor of Philosophy and of Theology and lectured for 23 years in Philosophy at the Lullian university in Palma, Majorca, and became famous as a university preacher. But he had no ambition to be known as a brilliant pulpit orator. His one burning desire was to go out among those who had never heard of God, or of Christ, and to bring to them the message of eternal salvation. He therefore offered himself as a missionary and set sail from Palma after a tender farewell to his dear parents whom he was never to see again. He arrived at Malaga in Spain and took a coastwise vessel to Cadiz, where with 20 other Franciscan missionaries, he embarked for Vera Cruz on the eastern coast of Mexico.

"On arriving at Vera Cruz he set out on foot with one companion for the City of Mexico, carrying nothing with him except a Franciscan habit on his back, a prayer-book in his hand, and an unbounded faith in God in his heart. On his way he received kind help from strangers who received him and his companion into their houses and gave them bread on the road, and Father Serra ever remembered gratefully a man who gave them a pomegranate with which they refreshed themselves. One evening, after a long day's walk, when they arrived very tired at an inn, Father Serra noticed that his feet were swollen, a condition which he attributed to the bites of mosquitoes which were plentiful in that low country. That night in his sleep he scratched one of his feet so much that it bled. The wound must have become infected because the sore stayed with him all his life, was a source of great suffering to him and, years later, almost prevented his coming to California.

Enters San Fernando

"They arrived in Mexico City on January 1, 1750. He immediately went to the college of San Fernando to be trained as a missionary to the Indians. When the Superior welcomed him he said, 'Would that someone might bring me a whole grove of Junipers like this one.' Six months later he set out for a large district northeast of Mexico City called Sierra Gorda, and during nine years worked among the natives founding missions and training the Indians in the ways of civilization and Christianity. At the end of the nine years these missions were secularized as Spain intended secularization to be made, in a just and humane way, that is, the churches were given over to the care of secular priests, the lands and equipment left to the Indians themselves to own, cultivate and enjoy the fruits thereof, and the missionaries were transferred to new fields of missionary work. Father Serra, therefore, retired from the Sierra Gorda country and returned to his headquarters in Mexico City.

"In 1767, Father Serra was sent with 15 companions to take charge of the 16 missions which the Jesuit Fathers had founded in lower California. He was named the father president of all these missions. They arrived at Loreto on the eastern side of the peninsula of Lower California, on April 1, 1768, where Father Serra remained in charge and sent the others to their respective posts.

Plan Expedition

"Don Jose de Galvez, who was the commander of the expedition into upper California, arrived in July and established himself at the place called Santa Ana, about 250 miles south of Loreto. From this place he sent a letter to Father Serra explaining the proposed expedition to upper California and inviting him to come to Santa Ana to talk it over. Father Serra made the journey of 100 leagues on foot and also visited other missions to consult with the fathers and to arrange with them to go on the holy expedition for the spiritual conquest of the vast territory along the northern coast. When the expedition was all ready, Father Serra set out from Loreto with two soldiers and a servant, on March 28, 1769. On the way his foot, which always caused him suffering, became worse, and when he caught up with the second land division upon Governor Portola, the governor tried to dissuade him from making the journey on account of the terrible condition of the foot, but only elicited the reply from Father Serra that he had put his trust in God who would give him strength, not only to arrive at the bay of San Diego, but to go on to Monterey.

"On the way, he met his dear friend and pupil, Father Palou, who, being moved to tears at the sight of the ulcerated foot, on where there was no other covering than a sandal, that is, a slipper crudely made of leather straps, begged to go in his place, but Father Serra only answered: 'Let us not talk about it. I have put all my trust in God.'

"On the way, Father Serra founded a mission in Lower California which he named San Fernando, to be a means of communication between the older Missions of Lower California and the new Missions he was then on his way to establish in upper California. On that day, 12 native men appeared and Father Serra saw for the first time in their native state the people he had come to serve in their own land. He was startled to see that what he had heard was true, that is, that the men went entirely naked. Taking an interpreter with him, he approached them, placed his hand on the head of each, as a sign of affection, and filled their hands with dried figs, which they immediately began to eat. They in turn made him a present of a net made of fiber of what we call the century plant and four large handsome fish. "At the end of two days' march from the newly founded Mission, Father Serra was in such pain from his infirmity that he had to lie prostrate on his bed, and Portola, after a vain effort to induce him to give up the journey, ordered a litter to be made for the purpose of carrying him on the shoulders of some Indians that accompanied the expedition. Then Father Serra called a mule driver, named Juan Antonio Coronel, and said to him: 'My son, don't you know how to make a remedy for my foot and leg?' But the man replied, 'Father, what do I know about remedies? I am only a muleteer, and know only how to cure the gall sores on the backs of the pack animals.' 'Very well then, my son,' answered Father Serra, 'consider that I am one of your beasts of burden, and that this sore is a gall-sore—treat me as if I were one of your animals.' The mule driver laughed, as did the rest, and said: 'All right, Father, I will do it to please you.' Then he crushed some tallow between two stones and mixed with it a few herbs he had gathered to make a poultice and applied it to the leg.

Continues Journey

"Father Serra slept well that night and the next day attended to his ordinary duties and resumed the journey as if nothing ailed him. They arrived at San Diego without further incident.

"Father Serra made his headquarters in California at the Mission of San Carlos, on the banks of the River Carmelo, near Monterey. He founded also, the next year, 1771, the Mission of San Antonio de Padua, in the Santa Lucia mountains, some 40 miles south of Monterey, on the coast. In 1772 he founded San Luis Obispo, and then traveled overland to San Diego. At that point, Pedro Fages, the commandante, refused to co-operate in the founding of the next Mission, and it was necessary for Father Serra to make the journey down to the City of Mexico to consult with the new viceroy, Don Antonio Maria de Bucarelli. On the way he fell ill at Guadalajara and nearly died, but recovered, and continued on his way toward Mexico City. Again he fell sick at Queretaro, and stayed for a time in the convent of Santa Cruz, or Holy Cross. From Queretaro some years ago a friend sent me a photographic copy of a painting of Father Serra that used to hang in the very convent of Santa Cruz where Father Serra had lain ill for some time. The painting disappeared during the recent troubles there, but I had the picture enlarged and it now hangs in the museum of San Juan Capistrano.

Founds Capistrano Mission

"In 1776 Father Serra founded the Mission of San Juan Capistrano and visited it again in 1778 and in 1783 where he said mass in the church that is still standing and for this reason it is known as Father Serra's church.

"At Carmel Mission, near Monterey, Father Serra died on August 28, 1784. From the description of his illness I am of the opinion that Father Serra died of tuberculosis of the lungs. He was buried in the Mission church and when the new church was finished, his body was moved and placed in the Sanctuary where it now lies at Carmel Mission.

"Father Serra stands out head and shoulders above every other figure of his day in California. He highly deserves the honors given to him. His monuments stand along the Camino Real, or King's Highway, from San Diego to San Francisco, not only in the form of the Missions he founded but in appropriate statues, tablets and crosses. They are to be seen at San Diego, San Juan Capistrano, San Gabriel, San Fernando, Riverside, Monterey, San Francisco and other places. He is the principal figure in the Mission Play, which gave its three thousandth performance at San Gabriel one week ago yesterday. Most of all, he is enshrined in the hearts of the people of California, who, by popular acclaim, hail him as the founder of civilization on this coast and the patron Saint of its destinies."

THE LARGEST WAGE EARNERS IN FRANCE

America is not the only country in the world that lavishly pays its actors, its opera stars, and its crooners. Here is Maurice Chevalier in France who sings ballads, and we are told that he gets an annual income of $800,000 or $500 for every hour he sings. Marcel Pagnol, the author of "Marius," which Otis Skinner is presenting on the stage in this country, is getting an income of $400,000 a year, which amounts to about $400 for every hour he works. A few years ago he was a school teacher getting $20 a week. Andrew Citroen, who makes those little autos one sees on the streets of Paris, which use the packing box for a garage, has an annual income of $900,000 a year, but he has to hang around the office many more hours than Chevalier or Pagnol.

It all means that the man who can amuse the greatest number of people is sure to get an income that runs into six figures. But there are only a few. For one Chevalier and Pagnol there are literally hundreds of thousands who are racking their brains to make a literary output, but who never even find a printer. Their only compensation is the rapture of pursuing, but that "batters no parsnips." It is just as well that the good of human life does not consist in what the very few get. Most of us have a very good time if we can get a comfortable home in which to live, enough to eat, coal in the cellar, a little auto in the garage, and a radio in the sitting room. Ballad singers and kings get very little more out of life.

More Truth Than Poetry

MAYBE THE MAXIMS ARE WRONG

Contentment, I'm told, isn't founded on gold. But on hard and unflattering toil: Such as farmers perform through the sunshine and storm. In procuring the bread from the soil. Far better than wealth is the strong sturdy health That the life of the husbandman brings. And the sheep herder's lot in his poor little cot Has been often the envy of kings. But some time with a number of farmers I've spent And never a one was content.

The poor man, I hear, never shivers with fear. Lest the stock market prices may fall. Though no fault of his own, and will leave him to groan At the prospect of losing it all. No investments has he on the land or the sea. No jewels has he to conceal. And he sleeps well at night undisturbed by all fright Though the wolf may be hard on his heel. But though my acquaintance with poor men is wide Not a one's at all satisfied.

The rich man is said to be harried with dread That he'll lose all his hard garnered gains. Or he may beget heirs who in business affairs Are shockingly lacking in brain. He must now and again know the envy of men Which ripens in time into hate. While they constantly plot till at last they have got The bulk of his goodly estate. But the rich man, in spite of his worry and strife Seems to get lots of fun out of life.

What Is a Higher Standard of Living?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

What is economics, anyway? It is the study of the production and distribution of goods. Evidently, the subject needs study, for the world has been utterly unable, during the past year, to distribute the goods which it could easily produce.

Yet increasing the distribution of goods is the only way of raising the material standard of living; and the only purpose of studying economics is to raise the material standard of living. While we are discussing a thousand little things in this complicated economic world, let us not lose sight of the big things. Nothing is bigger than this fundamental fact: a higher standard of living IS increased per capita CONSUMPTION of wealth.

When we say that the standard of living of our wage-earners was 34 per cent higher in 1929 than it was before the War, we mean that the average wage-earner CONSUMED 34 per cent more. We mean that for every THREE oranges, coats, books, baseballs, fountain-pens—in short, for every three units of goods—which the average wage-earner used up before the War, he used up FOUR in 1929. We mean that and nothing else.

So, also, when we say that the standard of living declined in 1930, we mean that the CONSUMPTION of wealth declined. What that means we all know from experience—plenty of it. It follows that the only way to get back our prosperity is to get back our CONSUMPTION.

Prosperity does not consist of inventions, mills, bank deposits, farms, stores or railroads. In fact, prosperity is not capital goods of any kind. These things do not necessarily bring benefits. They result in higher standards of living, only in so far as they result in higher CONSUMPTION of goods.

It follows that spending must keep pace with production, or some of the money savings which we put into capital goods are not real savings. They are real waste.

Increased consumption of wealth IS a higher standard of living.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

PRAYER FOR LEGISLATORS

Almighty God, Lord alike of Citizen and of Commonwealth, we beg thy benediction upon our deliberations in this time of economic stress that we may be animated by a sense of social ministry of government.

Save us from seeing government as a game to be played or an enterprise to be exploited.

Lay strong restraints upon us when we are tempted to think of the State as a thing apart from the sweat and struggle of its citizens.

Give us to see the State as an instrument to be used, not as an idol to be worshipped.

Save us from the corroding skepticism that many now bring to the processes of democracy.

Inspire in us a determination to prove that democracy can be more interested in the veracity of its conduct than in the votes of its constituents.

Give us greater concern for the precision than for the popularity of our measures.

As servants of the Commonwealth, may we put the advance of intelligence above the accumulation of influence. May we exalt excellence the while we are safeguarding equality.

Give us a living sense of the greatness of the traditions of statesmanship that, in the spirit of these traditions, we may bring flexible minds to the ceaseless necessity of keeping the tools of government adjusted to the tasks of government.

May majority and minority alike be just and generous so that even their mutual criticism may be a creative collaboration. Lift us above the cheap hatreds that boil up in the hearts of little men that we may be neither bitter in battle nor sulking in defeat.

Emancipate our minds from a too exclusive bondage to daybook and ledger that we may envision government as the people's agency for the economic betterment, the intellectual stimulation, and the spiritual enrichment of their lives. Amen.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

TRY IT ONCE

It is very easy to lose patience and call a child stupid. Usually it is a mistake.

"Now watch me. Put this thread over; now pull this one under; now holding this one firmly in the right hand slip this one under, in between, over, under and up and pull. So. Now you do it."

The child fumbled badly. "My, how can you be so stupid? Watch me. It is so easy. Now then. Put this thread over."

Each time the instructor gave the directions, the self-same directions word for word, the child tried to make the knot and failed. Each time that happened the teacher's impatience increased and her voice took on more power until she was shouting. But the child never tied that knot.

When you begin to call a child stupid because he does not get the idea you offer, stop where you are. Think how you felt when the teacher asked you to translate a new passage. Remember your bewilderment, your utter helplessness. Even when the passage was read to you there was no answer in your mind. You could not even hear the foreign words.

Or maybe somebody tried to teach you tatting. It looked so easy. Did you get that knot to slip along the thread the first time? Or the second? Did you feel stupid? You felt helpless but you knew you were not stupid.

If only the teacher would be a little more patient. If only she would show you move by move, thread by thread, you could get it.

So can the child. It is just as hard for him to catch a new idea as it is for you. Instead of losing patience and calling him stupid, try a good thing for teachers and parents to study something new every year. Nothing gives one such insight into the difficulties of the children as experiencing difficulty of the same sort oneself.

"You can't do that problem? My goodness, a boy like you ought to do that in his head."

"You think it's so easy? Suppose you try it."

And poor father worked two hours, cored a basketful of paper and didn't get it. Just try it yourself once and see.

(Copyright, 1931, The Bell Syn., Inc.) Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, including stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)

ON THE SIDELINES

Which may or may not be in accord with the views of The Register

—By Horace McPhee—

AN UNCALLED FOR BOOK—

Surely the American people are long suffering and slow to anger. Further evidence that such is the case is afforded by the fact that a very recent attempt to assail the memory and blacken the character of Abraham Lincoln will probably go unrebuked. One Edgar Lee Masters, who is heralded as an "author of repute," has written a book with that end in view. It has just been published by a publishing house which might easily be at better and decenter business than publishing a book which belittles the ability and even assails the character of a man whose pre-eminent ability and greatness of soul is known and recognized throughout the civilized world.

Abraham Lincoln, as the world knows, was able, he was kind and considerate and above all charitable, using the word charity in its better sense, "love." He hated no man or men; he loved the south and it is generally acknowledged that the people of the south lost their best friend when Lincoln died at the hands of a murderer.

Edgar Lee Masters says of this great American that he was: "A political personality, a 'slick' and crafty politician," a "cold, mannerless, unkempt, at times neurotic and superstitious."

Lincoln, he writes, "was mannerless, unkempt, and one wonders if he was not unwashed."

Mr. Masters has plenty more to say along the same line and his work is a striking example of what some people are low enough to write and publish in the effort to achieve a so-called "best seller."

Verily the day of the muck raker in current literature has come.

THE RAIN CAME—When, early last fall, the savants, I like that word savant, set forth at considerable length that the season of 1930-31 was going to be a cruelly hard one for Southern California in the matter of rainfall they evidently got off on the wrong foot as even savants are liable to do. It will, no doubt, be remembered that the predictions made were based upon the records of the temperature of the ocean in the vicinity of La Jolla, San Diego county, records covering many years. These showed, it was alleged, that the sea water temperature was such that rain for Southern California for this season was an impossibility; the northern and central parts of the state would receive the normal supply, but as to Southern California, oh no, not any.

But the month of January did considerable to discredit the savants by furnishing right smart in the way of rainfall, even in the territory which had been held to be in the "rainless belt" for the present season. Then along came February and when February "sat in" at the rainfall game all limits were declared off. February "saw" January in the matter of precipitation, and "raised" some six inches or thereabouts during the first week of the month.

This showing, in the matter of rainfall was a fairly good one, and it must be remembered that February is only half gone and that time is the essence of this contract to furnish rain. Following February comes March, and March is generally to be depended upon to do its duty in the matter of rainfall.

So it is that present indications are that Southern California will get considerably more than the normal rainfall for this season, the "savants" to the contrary notwithstanding.

A RIGHT GOOD NEWSPAPER.—An Oriental newspaper which devotes a part of its space to matter in English seems inclined to be somewhat boastful of its ability to do a good job along that line.

It says: "The news of English we tell the latest. Write in perfect style and most earliest. Do a murder commit we hear of it and tell it. Do a mighty chief die, we publish it and in borders sombre. Staff has each been collected and write like Kipling and the Dickens. We circle every town and extortionate not for advertisements."
